Frequently Asked Questions

Why are we not traveling to Washington, DC this year?

In a presidential election year, there's a lot of additional distractions in Washington, DC. It can prove to be more difficult to capture the attention of your Federal representatives as a result. Staying home eliminates the extra noise election years bring to Washington, DC.

Additionally, we recognize there are many organizations still placing restrictions on travel. Staying home this year offers you the opportunity to participate without incurring high costs for your organizations.

Finally, your federal representatives are on recess from Washington DC during the week we chose. This gives us even greater opportunity and flexibility to meet with your Federal officials in your home state.

Will this be the new model for Legislative Day going forward?

It is not AAHAM’s intent to keep Legislative Day a home state event. We intend to return to Washington, DC in 2025! AAHAM may determine every four years during presidential elections that we can be more effective at home, so this model may be used again.

Is the entire event virtual?

No! Monday and Tuesday will be web conferences hosted by the Government Relations committee. Thursday, you will travel to your Federal representative’s closest office to meet face to face. This will afford a better opportunity to meet with your actual elected official.

If we aren’t going to Washington, DC, why are there still costs involved?

AAHAM still incurs significant costs for hosting Legislative Day whether it be in Washington, DC or at home. We understand our members may be facing budget restrictions, so we've kept the cost to you as low as possible. Also, this year we're offering the opportunity to buy two get one free if three attendees register together! We felt this was the best path forward keeping fiscal responsibility to your organization in mind.

Why are there no events planned for Wednesday, June 19th?

In recognition of the Juneteenth Federal holiday, AAHAM is pausing all Legislative Day activities.
How will my visit(s) be scheduled?

Your visits will be scheduled based on the address you provided on your registration form. As Congressional districts are designed by nine digit zip codes, this determines which Federal Representative your visit will be scheduled with.

What are this year's Advocacy topics?
