CAMTS Spring 2025

Following the spring CAMTS Board meeting, the CAMTS Executive Staff participated in CCTMC. “Achieving CAMTS accreditation is a significant accomplishment that reflects a steadfast commitment to excellence in medical transport,” said Jan Eichel, Executive Director of CAMTS. “CAMTS standards, developed and continuously refined by a board of seasoned safety and medical transportation experts, go well beyond regulatory requirements. Accredited programs undergo regular, rigorous audits to ensure ongoing compliance and the highest level of patient care and safety,” she added.

The CAMTS Board awarded sixteen accreditations as follows:

The CAMTS Global Board met April 9th and deliberated on two programs applying for accreditation as follows:

NETS (Newborn and Pediatric Emergency Transport Services) of Georges Hall, Australia, and 247 Aviation Limited of Belfast, Northern Ireland, UK, were awarded full accreditation by the CAMTS Global Board of Directors in April 2025.

The Commission on Accreditation of Medical Transport Systems (CAMTS) is dedicated to improving the quality of patient care and safety of the transport environment for services providing rotorwing, fixed wing, and ground transport systems. To achieve accreditation by CAMTS, medical transport programs must adhere to CAMTS's standards, developed and continually improved by a board of highly skilled and experienced safety and medical transportation professionals. Adherence to these standards, which are above and beyond regulatory requirements, is audited every three years to ensure program compliance to remain accredited by CAMTS. Nearly 200 services have achieved CAMTS accreditation. For more information, visit www.camts.org.
