

AESTHETIC INVESTIGATIONS

Published on behalf of the Dutch Association of Aesthetics

Call for articles and essays, 2019 ff.

Editor in Chief
ROB VAN GERWEN

Affiliation
UTRECHT UNIVERSITY

CALLS FOR CONTRIBUTIONS

(Down for an introduction of the journal)

For all the sections in our journal we generally invite submissions on any issue in aesthetics and the philosophy of the arts, taken broadly. We also invite reviews of recently published books in these areas. We can request for a review copy of books with the publisher if we do not have it handy yet. Please contact our reviews editor, Arthur Cools.

Next to a general call for papers, we also invite submissions in the themes specified below. Please find the relevant deadlines for submissions to the different sections below.

CALLS FOR GUEST EDITORS

We seek guest editors for special issues to solicit approximately 5 papers on a theme (for Articles, under anonymous peer review regime). Some of the themes are already specified, see below, but we also solicit themes for future special issues. Do not hesitate to contact us with a proposal specifying the necessity and fruitfulness of the theme that you have in mind, and, perhaps, suggesting a guest editor.

We also seek guest editors for *Arts & Artists. The editorial board assists with reviewing the contributions in this section. Your selection of contributions may be in line with your own research interests.

(Mark specific deadlines for different sections)

CALLS FOR ARTICLES

7500 words maximum, reviewed anonymously

We welcome articles addressing questions about art and aesthetics. We particularly solicit contributions in upcoming issues of Aesthetic Investigations on the following themes.

Volume IV (issue 1)

Empirical Aesthetics

(Guest editor: Prof. James Hamilton¹, with Rob van Gerwen)

What are the philosophical limitations or benefits of empirical approaches to aesthetic issues, such as neuro-aesthetics, evolutionary aesthetics, psychological aesthetics, or statistic approaches? What sense does it make to art criticism to establish assumed causes for our aesthetic judgements? What should be the consequence of successful empirical approaches?

Deadline for submissions (extended): December 15, 2019

Volume IV (issue 2)

The Birth of the Discipline

(Guest editor: Prof. Endre Szécsényi², with Rob van Gerwen)

We would expect papers which re-consider and re-interpret the pre-Kantian history of modern aesthetics (ca. the middle of the 17C to the 1780s) in order to show the multifarious and multidisciplinary nature of the emerging aesthetic, to analyse the conflicts and tensions between this new type of experience and its first theoretical treatments, to offer, on the one hand, new interpretations of the familiar key-concepts of this period (including the beautiful, the sublime, the picturesque, taste, imagination, genius, originality, wit, humour, pity, laughter, sensibility, etc.) and, on the other, some earlier not discussed key-concepts for re-shaping the scholarly discourse about this period, to demonstrate how modern aesthetic is inseparable from theology, moral and social philosophy, economy, natural jurisprudence, medicine, and, finally, to make it clear that many of aesthetic issues of this period can be seen as fruitful theoretical resources or sources of inspiration for contemporary aesthetic thinking from environmental and every day aesthetics to somaesthetics.

Deadline for submissions: May 15, 2020

¹Prof. James Hamilton, Department of Philosophy, Kansas State University.

²Prof. Endre Szécsényi, Institute for Art Theory and Media, Department of Aesthetics, Budapest, Honorary Research Fellow at the University of Aberdeen.

Volume V (issue 1)

Isn't all art performed?

(Guest editor: Rossen Ventzislavov³ (working with Sue Spaid))

Can we think of stable artworks such as paintings and books in terms of performance? Or does this notion apply only to the so-called performative arts, like music, theatre, danse? What consequences, if any, should our answer to this question have for the nature of artistic merit, and, hence, aesthetic evaluation?

Deadline for submissions: October 15, 2020

CALLS FOR PAPERS IN ARTS & ARTISTS

3000 words max.

Contributions to the Arts & Artists-section are not reviewed anonymously, and should not normally exceed 3000 words. For our Arts & Artists section we welcome short texts addressing questions about particular artists and their art. We particularly solicit papers attempting to initiate or refresh aesthetic discussion in our journal on the following themes:

Ongoing theme for Arts & Artists essays:

Which philosophical problem(s) do you feel you are dealing with in your art today? This may be expanded to: Which philosophical problem(s) is artist X dealing with in their art today?

Volume IV (issue 1)

Guest Editor . . . :

Deadline for submission: December 15, 2019

Is a work of art by definition a work of fiction, or are the materials used enough proof of a work's truth? Is there truth in fiction? Is art comparable to bungee jumping, or does it automatically have a claim to truth?

Investigations
ciation of Aesthetics

³Woodbury University, Los Angeles.

Calls for short papers in Fresh (3500 words max.)

Contributions to the Fresh section are not reviewed anonymously, and should not normally exceed 3500 words. For our Fresh section we welcome short texts addressing questions about art and aesthetics. We particularly solicit papers attempting to initiate or refresh aesthetic discussion in our journal on the themes of our special issues, see above with the Articles; and on the following themes:

Ongoing theme for Fresh essays:

Why ... aesthetics / Why aesthetic ... (author to fill in the dots.)

What is your conception of aesthetics? Aesthetic Investigations requests philosophical responses to our open-ended discussion on “Why ... Aesthetics”, inviting aestheticians to defend anything from evolutionary aesthetics, the reduction of aesthetics to the philosophy of perception, the tendency toward neuro-aesthetics, the search for wonder, the focus on surprise, or the objections to any of these.

Volume IV (issue 1) What are the philosophical limitations of empirical approaches to aesthetic issues?

Think of neuro-aesthetics, evolutionary aesthetics, psychological aesthetics, or statistic approaches? What sense does it make to art criticism to establish assumed causes for our aesthetic judgements? What should be the consequence of successful empirical approaches?

Deadline for submission: December 15, 2019

Volume IV (issue 2) The birth of the Discipline

Deadline for submission: May 15, 2020

Volume V (issue 1) Isn't all art performed?

Can we think of stable artworks such as paintings and books in terms of performance? Or does this notion apply only to the so-called performative arts, like music, theatre, dance? What consequences, if any, should our answer to this question have for the nature of artistic merit, and, hence, aesthetic evaluation?

Deadline for submission: October 15, 2020

INTRODUCING THE JOURNAL

Aesthetic Investigations is an international journal for aesthetics, each volume consisting of two issues. It is Open Access and anonymously reviewed. Aesthetic Investigations is published on behalf of the Dutch Association of

Aesthetics (the Nederlands Genootschap voor Esthetica, est. 1997).⁴

Our interest is with the present. The history of aesthetics is discussed for its pertinence for contemporary debates. The aim of Aesthetic Investigations is to develop contemporary debates in philosophical aesthetics, and initiate new ones—and to do this from any viable angle.

We adhere to the view that communication is possible at all levels, but do not assume that all philosophers speak the same language. We start by letting all philosophies speak in their own tongue, allowing philosophers to clarify their points using their own philosophical jargon. The clarification, it is our hope, is what will bring about the conversation. Let us all be clear — in our own terms.

The journal encourages philosophical discussion amongst philosophers, humanities researchers and critics, of all the arts; as well as those interested in the aesthetics of the everyday. We welcome discussion about norms of success and correctness at stake in the various disciplines; about the phenomenology of the appreciative experience of all art forms, and of particular exemplary works and situations. Aesthetic Investigations also encourages debates about philosophical issues regarding one or the other of the art forms; the impact of works of art on their public, political, ethical, cultural context, and of these contexts on the works; the ontology of art, their definition, and so on.

Aesthetic Investigations encourages reports of artistic research activities—distinguishing between the material scrutiny done while making a work and the research preceding such scrutiny. The Arts & Artists-section is devoted to the contribution of artistic scrutiny and artistic research and includes art-critical discussion, interviews with artists, and patrons, as well as interviews with philosophers of art. This rubric also allows criticism of articles in the Articles-section. Criticism of articles from other journals shall count as articles.

⁴Our predecessor journal, then bilingual, Esthetica. Tijdschrift voor Kunst en Filosofie, 2001-2015, is archived at <http://www.estheticatijdschrift.nl>.

THE THREE SECTIONS

1. Articles

Articles should not normally exceed 7,500 words. Our website facilitates that articles be submitted in anonymised form, for the sake of anonymous reviewing, and that biographical details and a 150 words abstract are provided in a separate file. Pictures to be included, are delivered as separate files (indicate clearly in the text where they should go). Copyright clearance is the author's responsibility.

2. Arts & Artists

Arts and artists are part of the conversations in the philosophies of the arts. We encourage critics to discuss the philosophical aspects of artists' works; artists to write about their own work, or about the works of others; philosophers to talk to artists about their works, and so on.

The Arts & Artists-section is edited by a guest editor in co-operation with the editorial board—the section is not peer-reviewed. Contributions to Arts & Artists should not normally exceed 3000 words and should include an abstract of no more than 100 words. We welcome the inclusion of pictures, which are eligible for publication as “the image of the journal” on the home page of an issue.

3. Fresh

Contributions to the Fresh section are not peer-reviewed and should not normally exceed 3500 words. They are meant to discuss in a slightly looser form new issues that, authors think, are ignored in mainstream aesthetics. This is typically the place where fresh thoughts are introduced in the debates, through pithy essays.

Translations

All texts submitted should be original, but we allow translations into English of articles and contributions to the Arts & Artists-section, with the proviso that the quality of the English is the author's responsibility.

Editorial Board

Editor in chief: Rob van Gerwen, Utrecht University editor@aestheticinvestigations.eu

Editor: Sue Spaid, Brussels
articles@aestheticinvestigations.eu

Editor, also Reviews: Arthur Cools, University of Antwerp
articles@aestheticinvestigations.eu

Editor Arts & Artists: variable (apply if you are interested) artsartists@aestheticinvestigations.eu

Assistant to the editor: Jurry Ekkelboom, Nijmegen info@aestheticinvestigations.eu

Board of Advisors

- Mauro Carbone (Université de Lyon 3)
- Paul Crowther (National University of Ireland, Galway)
- Josef Früchtel (University of Amsterdam)
- Christopher Fynsk (University of Aberdeen)
- Jason Gaiger (Oxford University, the John Ruskin School of Art and Drawing)
- Carolyn Korsmeyer (State University of New York at Buffalo)
- Thierry Lenain (Université Libre de Bruxelles)
- Jerrold Levinson (University of Maryland)
- Derek Matravers (The Open University)
- Graham McFee (University of Brighton, UK (em.) and California State University, Fullerton, USA.)
- Jos de Mul (Erasmus University Rotterdam)
- Monique Roelofs (Hampshire College)
- Yuriko Saito (Rhode Island School of Design)
- Martin Seel (Goethe Universität, Frankfurt)
- Richard Shusterman (Florida Atlantic University)
- Paul Taylor (Penn State University, Pennsylvania)
- Renée van de Vall (Maastricht University)
- Lambert Wiesing (Friedrich-Schiller-Universität Jena)
- Edward Winters (London)

And further ...

- ISSN: 2352-2704
- Contributions are published following the Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 License (CC BY 4.0):
<http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/4.0/>
- Texts to be submitted should either be in L^AT_EX (and B_IB_TE_X) or in Word (doc or docx), or RTF.
- Aesthetic Investigations will be widely indexed.

- Aesthetic Investigations is hosted at:
<http://www.aestheticinvestigations.eu>

