On the Cover: Shirley Tsootsoo Mensah, SA-7566, from Eastern Illinois University at Yellowstone National Park’s Upper Yellowstone Falls during summer field camp. Read about Shirley’s experience at field camp on page 19 of this issue.
The mission of the American Institute of Professional Geologists (AIPG) is to be an effective advocate for the profession of geology and to serve its members through activities and programs that support continuing professional development and promote high standards of ethical conduct. AIPG is the only national organization that certifies the competence and ethical conduct of geological scientists in all branches of the science. It adheres to the principles of professional responsibility and public service, and is the ombudsman for the geological profession. It was founded in 1963 to promote the profession of geology and to provide certification for geologists to establish a standard of excellence for the profession. Since then, more than 10,000 individuals have demonstrated their commitment to the highest levels of competence and ethical conduct and been certified by AIPG.