

Test Piece Service

Having problems getting your "whites" white? Find out why by using the Association for Linen Management's (ALM) Test Piece Service. If your whites are a little gray or your fabric is showing stress, we can help you determine why with our test piece service. You can improve your linen's appearance and "life span" by making sure your laundry is processing the linens correctly.

Subscription Information/Order Form

Definition: ALM Test Piece Service is a management tool which provides the laundry manager with an objective means of monitoring and/or evaluating wash formulas. ALM furnishes the subscriber with test piece swatches of specially woven fabric which are laundered with the wash classification being studied. The subscriber returns the swatches to ALM for analysis of tensile strength loss, whiteness retention, and chlorine bleach carryover. Additional tests are available for an additional charge. Call the ALM Office for details.

Procedure: ALM members or non-members subscribing to the test piece service will receive their swatches with complete testing instructions upon payment of the service. After the wash procedure has been completed, the swatches should be returned to ALM for testing. Results will be received in approximately three weeks.
