

Eileen Southern (1920–2002)

AMERICAN MUSICOLOGICAL SOCIETY

EILEEN SOUTHERN TRAVEL FUND

Are you interested in pursuing a career involving the study of music history and musical cultures?

Each year, the American Musicological Society (AMS) and the AMS Committee on Cultural Diversity host minority students at their annual conference to expose them to the field of musicology. Students are introduced to representatives of musicology graduate programs, future colleagues and mentors, and listen to papers covering a broad spectrum of musicological interests.

To help cover the cost of travel to the annual conference, the AMS has created the Eileen Southern Travel Fund for underrepresented undergraduates and students in terminal masters programs. Several awards are given each year to promising students considering further study in musicology. For more information, visit: <http://www.ams-net.org/committees/ccd/ccdtf-background.php>

Apply at

<http://www.ams-net.org/committees/ccd/ccd-travel-app.php>

Deadline:
June 1, 2018

Eligibility: Minority undergraduates & terminal masters degree candidates (African-Americans, Asian-Americans, Hispanic-Americans, Native-Americans, & other traditionally under-represented groups) in the US & Canada, & international students registered at US or Canadian universities at the time of the conference (Nov. 1-4, 2018). Please note that AMS does not provide airfare from outside the U.S. or Canada.

Questions: Please contact committee chairs Remi Chiu (rchiu@loyola.edu) and Emily Wilbourne (emily.wilbourne@qc.cuny.edu).