

EMERGING YOUNG PROFESSIONALS AWARD

ERIC GOLDMAN

TITLE – NAVIGANT

Eric Goldman is a Managing Consultant in the Global Construction Practice at Navigant Consulting. He has over 7 years of experience in architectural design, construction management, and dispute resolution/ construction claims. His current role at Navigant includes providing clients with advisory support on active projects as well as schedule and damage analysis of claims. Mr. Goldman has been involved with forensic analyses of construction claims, performing schedule delay analysis, error and omission analysis, standard of care review, and dispute resolution litigation support.

Mr. Goldman utilizes his diverse experience as an architectural designer, construction manager, and housing developer to inform his current work. Prior to joining Navigant, he deployed his background in architectural design and construction building science towards civic, affordable housing, and high-end residential projects. In addition, his previous work with the USGBC, Yale Urban Design Workshop, Design Corps, and AmeriCorps fueled his belief that personal connections and community service are important in one's professional development. Eric is active in Navigant's corporate citizenship efforts and volunteers with the Construction Institute to support the vital role that cross-disciplinary events and education serves within our A/C/E industry.
