

Kate Kaming is Senior Director for Cancer Development at Northwell Health, the largest hospital network in New York State, with 23 hospitals and more than 700 outpatient facilities in Long Island and NYC. Kate is the lead fundraiser for the Northwell Health Cancer Institute where she has implemented a multi-channel philanthropic program including, grateful patient fundraising, a major and principal gift program, and a third-party fundraising platform. Kate partners with cancer leadership, clinical and research faculty to realize their philanthropic priorities.

Kate has extensive experience in a variety of fundraising positions, most recently at Stony Brook Cancer Center (SBCC). In 2013 she was hired as the inaugural Director of Development and was promoted to Senior Director of Development and External Relations for the SBCC in 2016. In her time there, she raised more than $19 million for the SBCC and built SB's cancer development program. She raised funds for cancer research, clinical care and capital projects on the Stony Brook campus. Kate received her BA from the University of California, Berkeley in Anthropology/Medical Anthropology. Kate is a founding member of the Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Committee at the Northwell Health Foundation and is active in the National Association of Cancer Center Development Officers (NACCDO) where she co-chairs the principal and major gift affinity group. Kate is a fundraising/strategic planning volunteer for The Give Back Yoga Foundation – Y12SR Program and herself, a yogi and 500-hour certified yoga teacher.
