

Where Immunology Innovation Translates to Human Health Opportunity

The Federation of Clinical Immunology Societies is a key forum where opinion leaders come together to chart the path to the next major breakthrough in disease therapy. Through FOCIS, researchers and clinicians share knowledge across traditional disease borders and identify commonalities between treatments and therapies that are life-changing for those impacted by immune-mediated diseases.

Since 2001, The FOCIS Annual Meeting is THE ONLY place in immunology to reap the benefits of a truly translational experience. JOIN US to connect with 900+ researchers, clinicians, and leaders in translational immunology representing hundreds of universities and research centers globally. Collectively, they drive billions of dollars in spending to translate breakthrough immunology into human health success.

Why Industry Leaders Choose to Partner with FOCIS

FOCIS meetings are excellent scientifically and opened my mind to other experimental models and pathologies. I have integrated different immunology specialties in my work, like autoimmunity, that I've learned and have come to appreciate through FOCIS. Many great scientists go to FOCIS Annual Meetings and I have also incorporated some of these contacts in my world.

BENCH 2 BREAKTHROUGH

I always say that translational medicine is a separate discipline from basic research and clinical research. No matter if you're an MD, MD/PhD or a staff member working the space of translation medicine, you always feel that you're in between two fields, the bench and the bed. So FOCIS is really the home for people like me, bench scientists who want to translate their research into novel therapies to cure patients. There are no other societies that better identify with the translational medicine than FOCIS.
~Maria Grazia Roncarolo, MD, USA

While any amount is gratefully accepted, the amounts listed below indicate what is needed to fund a particular item or program.

- FOCIS Centers of Excellence Directors Forum

$10,000

The FOCIS Centers of Excellence (FCEs), in over 80 institutions around the world, create a unique structure that engages scientists from many disciplines in partnerships that guide the integration of complex data and immunological disease monitoring, promote partnerships for multi-center clinical trials and deliver trainee and investigator education in translational immunology. The FCE Directors Forum, held annually during the week of the FOCIS Annual Meeting, the FCE Directors Meeting brings together all FCE Directors to share best practices, discuss FCE business, and explore potential collaborative projects. In addition, the meeting provides a valuable opportunity to strengthen partnerships and align strategic goals across centers. Together, these efforts foster a collaborative environment that benefits the entire FCE community.

A FOCIS Center of Excellence (FCE) is based at an academic medical center, comprised of a multidisciplinary group of researchers from three or more areas relevant to clinical research.

The FCE network creates a community of researchers and clinicians accelerating multidisciplinary scientific and clinical innovation and education worldwide.

- FOCIS Centers of Excellence FUSION

An invitation-only networking event, held during the Annual Meeting. Specifically designed to foster professional development and collaboration, FCE Fusion features a moderated poster session, during which trainees present their research. Trainees receive valuable mentoring and constructive feedback from FCE Directors, helping to guide their future work.
