Celebrate International Grant Professionals Day on March 14, 2025!

The Grant Professionals Association (GPA) is thrilled to announce the eleventh annual International Grant Professionals Day (IGPD), taking place on Friday, March 14, 2025.

IGPD shines a spotlight on the vital work of grant professionals who serve as administrators, consultants, managers, grant-makers, and writers. This day celebrates their dedication to driving positive change and raising awareness about the critical role they play in communities around the globe.

Behind the scenes, grant professionals work tirelessly to secure funding, manage projects, and implement impactful programs that benefit society—especially those who are disadvantaged and underserved. These professionals uphold the highest standards of ethics, program development, project management, and financial stewardship. Their contributions extend far beyond securing grants, encompassing capacity building, sustainable solutions, fundraising, and expert implementation of transformative initiatives.

GPA invites grant professionals and organizations worldwide to join us in celebrating the profession and addressing the key challenges they face. Learn more about IGPD and explore ways to participate by visiting www.grantprofessionals.org/igpd. Together, let's honor the remarkable work of grant professionals on March 14, 2025
