Re: Mobile Device Identification and Authentication Workgroup

Dear Doug:

A representative of LodgeNet Interactive Corporation ("LodgeNet") participated in the organizational conference call on June 14 regarding the Mobile Device Identification and Authentication Workgroup ("Mobile Workgroup").

While it may be that the exact direction to be taken by the Workgroup in coming sessions is yet to be determined, it was clear to our call participant that technology related to permitting mobile device access to internal hotel networks and services is central to the effort.

LodgeNet has deployed and continues to develop technology specifically directed to providing reliable and secure authentication for mobile devices in the hotel environment, including but not limited to pairing of a guest mobile device to the guest room television.

LodgeNet has two United States patent applications on file at the USPTO in the mobile pairing space (and one PCT application as well), and has additional technology related to mobile pairing and authentication in development. It is likely that development effort will culminate in the filing of additional patent applications. LodgeNet also has developed software, know-how, and other forms of intellectual property in this space, and will continue to do so.

As a matter of corporate policy, LodgeNet retains all rights to its intellectual property, including in the mobile pairing space. While it is our intent generally to make our mobile pairing and authentication technology accessible to our customers and to other interested parties on reasonable licensing terms, we need to be clear that our participation in the proposed workgroup cannot, in and of itself, be construed as a grant of any license or other rights in such intellectual property to any party or organization.

Please make this letter available to your members in accordance with the HTNG workgroup policies, including the workgroup chair or co-chairs and facilitator, and make this a letter a matter of record.

We look forward to the opportunity to engage with HTNG and its members in the Mobile Workgroup.

Very truly yours,

James G. Naro, Assistant Secretary
