

A close-up photograph of a chrome faucet in a white sink. The faucet is turned on, and a stream of water is pouring out. The water is a deep orange color and is covered in many small, white bubbles, suggesting it is contaminated or has been aerated. The background is a plain, light-colored wall.

LIFE WITHOUT CLEAN WATER

would make us SICK.

The things you don't think about, cities supply, like streets, parks, utilities and safety – not to mention economic growth and quality of life. Home wouldn't be home without all our cities provide.

A message from the Association of Idaho Cities
#idahocities

There's no place like
HOME