

Application for IEA Early Career Epidemiologist Immersion Program 17-23 November 2024 | Porto, Portugal

The International Epidemiological Association (IEA) will pilot a 6-day immersion program for early-career epidemiologist members in November 2024. The program will provide attendees with tools to manage and advance their careers, while also creating meaningful opportunities to network with senior epidemiologists and build organic mentoring relationships.

To ensure the program meets these objectives and also ensures regional diversity among faculty and students, only 3 (three) early-career members from each IEA region will be selected to participate. Once accepted participants will be required to pay a USD $1,000 fee and airfare, while IEA will provide faculty, lodging, breakfast, lunch and evening activities such as the welcome reception.

Applications for this program, along with a personal letter of interest, 2 (two) letters of recommendation, and a current CV should be sent to membership@ieaweb.org by 30 April 2024. Decisions will be communicated on or about 15 May 2024.
