INMM
INSTITUTE OF
NUCLEAR MATERIALS
MANAGEMENT

Dear INMM Member:

As you plan your participation in the 61st INMM Annual Meeting, I ask you to consider nominating one of your colleagues for an INMM Award. The Annual Meeting presents us with the exciting opportunity to recognize our peers for their contributions to the nuclear materials management community. There is a diversity of recognition options for both Institute members and non-members, early career professionals and long-serving experts, and organizations. There is also a mechanism for honoring recently deceased members who have served the INMM with distinction. This brochure provides an introduction to the program and the information you need to prepare a nomination package.

The INMM's Awards and Recognition Program includes the following:

- The Vincent J. DeVito Distinguished Service Award (DSA)
- The Edway R. Johnson Meritorious Service Award (MSA)
- The Charles E. Pietri Special Service Award (SSA)
- The Early Career Award
- Resolution of Respect (RoR)

Who Can Nominate

Anyone can make a nomination. The Institute generally depends on its members, technical divisions and chapters, but non-members may also make nominations. Candidates are those in the INMM and nuclear materials management community who you admire and who have made significant contributions to the Institute or our profession. We encourage diversity in the awardees and to reach that goal, we depend on our partners in all fields of nuclear materials management around the globe to participate in the process.

Preparing Your Nomination

This brochure includes all the information you need to prepare a nomination, including the award guidelines, the required nomination information, and the nomination form. We also provide a list of past winners to demonstrate the caliber of the recipients. When making a nomination, please be sure to include sufficient information so that the nomination package stands on its own and does not require prior knowledge of the candidate. Remember that although the nuclear materials management community is relatively small, the Awards Committee and the Executive Committee members do not know everyone. These committees do their best to be independent and ensure that awards are only given to the most deserving candidates, and therefore, they rely on the content of the nomination package to validate the award.

New to the INMM Nomination Process?

Let me take this opportunity to thank those men and women who have taken the responsibility in the past to nominate a colleague or peer for an INMM award. Without the nominators who take on the task of preparing nomination packages, there would be no Awards and Recognition Program. If you are new to the program and have any questions, I encourage you to contact me or INMM headquarters at inmm@inmm.org before you begin.

Awards Presentation

The 2020 awards and resolutions of respect will be presented at the 61st Annual Meeting in Baltimore, Maryland, July 12-16, 2020. To give us time to complete the selection process, we require award nominations be submitted to INMM Headquarters at inmm@inmm.org no later than April 6, 2020. Late submissions are not accepted. Once the Awards Committee does its work and the Executive Committee approval is obtained, the Awards Committee will notify the nominators of the results sometime in May and prepare for the July Annual Meeting presentations. We ask that you keep your nominations private. Again this year, we will be contacting the winners before the event in case their family would like to attend. Presentation will be made prior to the opening plenary on Monday, July 13.

Finally, the Awards Committee would like to welcome Heidi Smartt and Igor Tsvetkov as our newest members. We look forward to working with them.

Sincerely,
Arden Dougan, Chair Awards

INMM Awards and Guidelines

Vincent J. DeVito Distinguished Service Award

- Recognizes individuals who have made long-term, noteworthy contributions to the nuclear materials management profession.
- Candidates are expected to be internationally recognized for their contributions to nuclear materials management.
- Candidates are not required to be INMM members.

Edway R. Johnson Meritorious Service Award

- Recognizes individuals who have provided long-term, outstanding service to the Institute, as well as made noteworthy contributions to the nuclear materials management profession.
- Candidates are required to be members in good standing of the Institute.

Charles E. Pietri Special Service Award

- Recognizes individuals or organizations who have made a specific, noteworthy contribution to the Institute.
- Award can be given to an organization that has advanced the knowledge and effectiveness of the nuclear materials management field
- Candidate organizations do not have to be a Sustaining Member of the Institute in order to be considered.
- Individual candidates are required to be active members in good standing of the Institute.

Early Career Award

- Recognizes members of the INMM who are 35 years of age or younger (as of the date of the nomination deadline) and who have made a singular outstanding achievement or a series of notable achievements in an area of nuclear materials management relevant to the Institute and its technical divisions.
- Candidate's notable achievement must not be related to work performed in pursuit of an academic degree. In the case of a series of achievements, work related to a degree may be considered. The notable achievement or series of achievements must be accomplished by the nominee while a member of the Institute. The nominee must be the sole or main contributor to the notable achievement.
- Candidates must not have already been a recipient of the Vincent J. DeVito Distinguished Service Award or the Edway R. Johnson Meritorious Service Award.
- Candidates are required to be active members in good standing of the Institute.

Required Nomination Information

To nominate a candidate for any of these awards, the following materials must be provided:

- Name of the award for which the individual or institution is being nominated.
- Name and address of the nominee, including title if nominee is a person, or former title if the individual is retired.
- Name, address and phone number of nominee's company or organization.
- Recent resume of individual nominee or history of institutional nominee.
- Supporting information for eligibility. See specific nomination guidelines. Nomination should summarize the individual's or institution's accomplishments and contributions.
- One sentence statement describing the specific contribution for which the award should be conveyed.
- A minimum of five separate letters of support from peers representing the breadth of the nuclear materials management community or the related technical division.
- Name, company, address, telephone, email address and fax number of the individual to contact about the nomination. This information is very important as the subcommittee may need to contact the nominator to request additional information.

Resolutions of Respect

In addition to the various awards provided by INMM, the Institute recognizes members who have made significant contributions to the Institute and have passed since the prior Annual Meeting with Resolutions of Respect. Candidates for this honor are required to have been active members in good standing of the Institute. For more information about this honor or to make a nomination email inmm@inmm.org.
