Institute of Student Employers appoints two new fellows

Institute of Student Employers (ISE) has appointed two new fellows to drive its vision to 'maximise the success of every business through full access to student talent'.

Alison Heron, Global Head of Employer Brand at GSK, and Bob Athwal, Senior Talent Manager at Skyscanner, are both experts in early careers and recruitment.

They join existing fellows and former ISE chairs Terence Perrin and Alison Hodgson as well as former ISE CEO Carl Gilleard.

An ISE fellow is a voluntary role, which is nominated by the ISE board in recognition of their contribution and ongoing support of the Institute and industry.

As chair of the ISE Nomination Remuneration and Governance Committee, Craig Babcock proposes fellows to the board.

Craig commented: "We're delighted to welcome such influential industry figureheads to our team. Their appointment will inform and drive some of our most important projects. As well as supporting the board and the ISE's strategic objectives they will help to deliver success on behalf of all of our members."

About the Institute of Student Employers

Institute of Student Employers (ISE), formerly the Association of Graduate Recruiters \(AGR\), is an independent, not-for-profit member organisation that was established in 1968. As the UK's leading independent voice for student employers, our vision is that the success of every business is maximised by full access to student talent. We achieve this by bringing together employers with education and supplier partners as well as providing leadership and support in all aspects of student recruitment and development.
