

Katarina Lokar, BSc (Educ.), RN

Katarina Lokar is Assistant Medical Director for Nursing and Care at the Institute of Oncology Ljubljana, Slovenia. She is a RN and holds BSc in education. She has been working in the field of oncology nursing since 1998. She had been working as a RN in the Medical oncology department for five years and as a research nurse in clinical trials for a year. From 2001 to 2007 she was a team member in genetic counseling for hereditary breast and ovarian cancer. In 2006 as a member of the working group for preparation of requirements for breast units according to EU guidelines at Ministry of health she developed the role of and requirements for breast care nursing in Slovenia which was presented at The Workshop on the Need for European Guidelines on Breast Care Nursing, held in the European Parliament. Since 2006 she has been a part time lecturer in nursing, from 2007 to 2008 she was a vice dean for education at the College of Nursing Jesenice. She is a member of Advocacy Working Group for the European Oncology Nursing Society (EONS). She is also a member of a number of local working groups where she represents oncology nursing. Her research and professional interests are hereditary breast cancer, quality of nursing care, development of new nursing roles, nursing education, mobile technologies, nursing diagnoses, nursing professionalisation, and are evident from her personal bibliography (<http://izumbib.izum.si/bibliografije/Y20140826154405-24477.html>).