PROGRAM FOR ISTR’S 12TH INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE

Ersta Sköndal University College
Stockholm, Sweden

June 28 – July 1, 2016
Dear Colleagues,

As the local host for the 12th international conference of the International Society for Third Sector Research (ISTR) it is the great pleasure for Ersta Sköndal University College to welcome you to Sweden and it’s capital Stockholm. For the first time in ISTR history, the conference is taking place in a Nordic country, and we are honored by this responsibility bestowed upon us.

The conference takes place at and around campus Ersta of Ersta Sköndal University College. Since the beginning of the 1990s, civil society studies have been the main concern for the local host institution: the Institute for Civil Society Studies at the Department for Social Science, Ersta Sköndal University College. The Institute has a multidisciplinary character and currently consists of more than 20 researchers, including a group of civil society studies PhD-students. The university also hosts CivLib – an information center for Swedish, European, and international civil society researchers.

Sweden and Stockholm have a lot to offer of interest to civil society researchers from around the world. In global contexts, Swedish researchers tend to highlight characteristics such as the significance of the popular mass movement tradition and the ways in which the Swedish civil society distinguishes itself in international comparisons. As a result of intimate linkages between political commitment and wider social engagement, the Swedish civil society is for example characterized by a relatively large number of associations and a high degree of active citizen participation among the population.

In a climate of cooperation, the Swedish civil society, with its organizations, foundations, and representatives, and the central Swedish government have been involved in the creation of this conference. We would like to acknowledge their support and contributions here.

The conference will take place at the very heart of Stockholm, a beautiful and friendly city situated on a number of islands and known for it’s clean and open water, it’s many parks, and charming old buildings. Together with ISTR and on behalf of the Swedish host committee we welcome every one of you and sincerely hope that you will have a rewarding stay in Sweden and Stockholm.

2016 Conference Theme:
THE THIRD SECTOR IN TRANSITION:
ACCOUNTABILITY, TRANSPARENCY, AND SOCIAL INNOVATION

In this era of far-reaching changes in the way that societies are organized, the Third Sector is playing a critical role and has significantly gained importance in many countries. Democratization and the role of civil society in social integration and participation are in the spotlight throughout the world. New media, social networks and other technological innovations raise new opportunities and challenges for organizing collective action and the diversity of civil society. Marketization and its impact on the Third Sector is attracting renewed research interest as welfare budgets are cut and the role of nonprofits is called into question in difficult fiscal times. In many nations including Scandinavia, for-profit health and social welfare organizations are actively competing with third sector organizations for public funding. A second type of marketization is also attracting attention particularly the growth of corporate social responsibility (CSR), the emergence of social enterprises and changing philanthropic paradigms. Social innovation and the role of third sector organizations as vehicles for innovation and more effective programs continue to receive widespread international attention. These profoundly important trends call for research to inform scholars and practitioners on the implications of these trends for theory, policy and practice.

ISTR’s Twelfth International Conference in Stockholm, Sweden offers an excellent opportunity for further dialogue on these and other changes in an environment of rigor, reflexivity, dialogue, and creativity. Sweden has a very long tradition of voluntary associations that have had a significant impact on public policy. While their public services remain reliant on local government, the rise of for-profit providers has challenged the traditional Scandinavian welfare state model and raised questions on the future role of the third sector. Thus, the 2016 conference will be occurring in the context of a widespread debate and re-examination of the traditional Social-Democratic welfare state model. This ongoing debate resonates with the debate through Europe, North America and Asia on the increasing competitive environment for third sector organizations and the implications of heightened expectations for performance, transparency, and accountability.

The increasingly turbulent and complex environment for third sector organizations is the central theme of this conference. Thus the conference will attempt to address and discuss the following issues:

• The Third Sector and the Welfare state
• Civil society and Democracy
• NGOs and Globalization
• Accountability and Transparency
• Social Innovation and Social Enterprise
• Advocacy and Public Policy
• Philanthropy and Foundations
• Volunteerism and Co-production
• Managing Third Sector Organizations
• Research on Teaching Third Sector Studies
• Emerging Areas of Theory and Practice

Please note that conference themes are indicated in the program following the title of each session.
Tough problems require effective solutions.
See what we are doing to make that difference.
