

University of Rhode Island
Lecturer, Textiles, Fashion Merchandising & Design

Position is full-time academic year, limited to 06-30-2020, with anticipated renewal.
Preferred start date July 1, 2019.

The University of Rhode Island is the state's land grant university. The nation's smallest state has the lively and creative capital city of Providence and surprisingly rural areas. The University's tree-filled campus is in southern RI, a short commute from Providence and close to beaches, the beautiful Narragansett Bay and Newport. The campus is also within easy reach of New York City and Boston, by car or by train.

The long-established Textiles, Fashion Merchandising and Design Department has recently joined the University's College of Business where it will contribute to the expansion of creative thinking and entrepreneurship, while maintaining for its students a balance of academic rigor and career-relevance. For more information on the department, visit our website: <https://web.uri.edu/tmd/>

Teach and develop two or more courses in the merchandising area, such as digital retailing, branding, retail analytics, and fashion promotion. Ability to teach in other areas, such as sustainability and basic textiles. Advise undergraduates; supervise internships and independent studies. Report to the Office for the Advancement of Teaching and Learning. Develop undergraduate grand challenge course(s). Participate in University service and related professional activities.
