2017 MISSOURI LINeworker APPRECIATION DAY (APRIL 10, 2017)

[Sample Municipal Resolution and Editorial/Press Release]

MATERIALS AND IDEAS

April 10 is 2017's "Missouri Lineworker Appreciation Day".

In 2015 the Missouri legislature set the second Monday in April for an annual observance of this appreciation date. MPUA's cities with electric utilities are encouraged to consider local ways to use the date to highlight the role and accomplishments of lineworkers, using public outreach strategies such as proclamations, media interviews, speaking opportunities, public announcements, or local events.

SAMPLE MUNICIPAL RESOLUTION

- Localizes similar wording in past Missouri legislation
- After a proclamation is passed, you may distribute it to the news media, post it on your website and Intranet, email it to employees, use it as a newspaper ad, write about it in your customer newsletter and make copies or a poster for customer service centers.

If the power is on where you are reading this, you have a lineworker to thank.

April 10, 2017 is "Missouri Lineworker Appreciation Day", honoring the serious and vital work carried out by our electrical crews.

Our [CITY NAME] lineworkers do a difficult, dangerous job that really matters. Every day, lineworkers are at work handling thousands of volts of electricity high atop power lines. The job requires special training and skill. It's also a job they must perform safely in all kinds of weather conditions, at any hour of the day or night.

In addition to their daily hard work of installing and repairing our power connections, lineworkers are critical members of the community of first responders. When trouble strikes, the job of a lineworker is often to head toward a scene of danger, to keep the power on and to make conditions safe for other first responders like police, firefighters and emergency medical staff. [ADD-IN (if your community participates in the Mutual Aid Program)]: When called upon, many of these Missouri lineworker hometown heroes also sometimes travel to assist neighboring communities or even neighboring states with storm recovery needs, at no cost to their home cities. Our recovery from weather-related emergencies and larger disasters would be difficult, and would take much longer without their commitment.

[CITY NAME] has [NUMBER] lineworkers on our electric crews, responsible for maintaining [CITY'S] [## MILES] of power lines. Their skill and dedication is a huge part of how [CITY] is able to serve the community with reliable, safe, affordable electricity to homes and businesses.

These hometown heroes put their lives on the line every day, and they deserve our thanks.

NOTES and OTHER RESOURCES:

- Missouri statute sets this state observance as the second Monday of April. Other groups and other states sometimes designate other appreciation dates.
- Missouri statute uses the word “lineworker” to call the day “Missouri Lineworker Appreciation Day”. (<http://www.moga.mo.gov/mostatutes/stathtml/00900001851.html>). Designations by some other states or organizations may still refer to “National Lineman Appreciation Day”. MPPUA recommends that municipalities use the Missouri legislation’s inclusive “lineworker” wording, the term also used by the APPA.
- In connection with the observation, consider using the hashtag #ThankALineworker on related posts in social media (Facebook, Twitter, etc.).
