Program Highlights

SOME FEATURED SPEAKERS AND TOPICS

◆ The Politics of Governing

BY KEN MCCLURE, MAYOR OF SPRINGFIELD, MISSOURI

Navigating utility operations through the political process has never been easy. Mayor McClure has a rich history working in government and utilities. He will provide insight on how to successfully advance utility issues with elected officials and the public.

◆ The Value of Municipal Utilities

BY MEENA DAYAK, VP OF INTEGRATED MEDIA AND COMMUNICATIONS, AMERICAN PUBLIC POWER ASSOCIATION

Prepare for a new era of customer awareness and engagement. This roadmap will show you how to get ready by addressing changing customer preferences, rate design, technologies, regulation, and market forces.

◆ Water and Wastewater Sessions

Listen to federal, state, and local government officials discuss comprehensive solutions to improve water quality and optimize infrastructure investments. Additionally, a panel of engineers will share their experiences of working through water and wastewater permitting requirements. Finally, as water supply planning is important for community growth, hear about programs and projects needed to ensure sustainable supplies.

◆ Electric Sessions

During these sessions, learn ways to overcome the hurdles of operating a distribution system, the evolution of utility-scale battery storage and the utility's role in providing infrastructure for charging electric vehicles and other hot topics.

◆ Economic Development Tips for Utilities

When a new business is thinking about locating in your community, utility service is an important piece of the decision-making process. Retaining customers with high utility service use is also important. This session will provide tips to help your town's business sector thrive.

◆ What's the latest in cyber security?

Cybersecurity is one of those issues that continues to attract news headlines. Since these threats bring new risks to the utility sector no matter the size, we'll cover the latest hacks to watch for along with new tools to fight intrusions.

◆ Missouri Legislative Panel

Your chance to hear from Missouri elected officials about the priorities of state government and ask questions about municipal utility needs. Get the latest on future policy trends and help shape the municipal utility agenda.
