Navigating Business Performance, Leadership, and Culture

Today's Dose of Must-Have Thought Leadership Strategies for 2018

Houston, TX - September 27, 2017 - Sheer Velocity, LLC and High Performance Network, LLC have partnered to Co-Chair an all-day thought leadership conference featuring renowned business leaders and professionals thriving at the forefront of today's economy at the History Colorado Center in downtown Denver on 24th of October 2017. Sheer Velocity and High Performance Network are launching its first of a series of conferences curated by business leaders for business leaders. Debra Young, Managing Partner at Sheer Velocity said she encourages "entrepreneurs, business leaders, operations managers, and executives from all corners of industry to attend this conference so they can accelerate their leadership to the next level." The conference is designed to share and discover best practices to improve business performance, network and build better business relationships, and explore actionable learning. Jon Gordon, Managing Partner at Sheer Velocity said he "has witnessed the benefits of professional development from his clients who have improved personal and team performance by attending peer networking events". The Denver Business Insights Conference provide executives and professionals with peer to peer personalized learning and development to assist leaders and professionals to take their personal and team performance to the next level. "Leading in today's market requires thought leadership skills and abilities to execute your strategy", says Lakesia Campbell, Director of Operations at High Performance Network.

The morning session speakers will address the trends, risks and opportunities in the technology, energy, healthcare, and manufacturing sectors for 2018. They will also discuss the key elements necessary to take your leadership to the next level. One speaker offers insight into her challenges and the dynamics of transitioning from a “safe” functional role into an operations role, and thrived. The afternoon session will include business executives who will share how they navigated business performance, leadership, and organizational culture to thrive in an age of disruption. Learn from one of the afternoon speakers about how to address the challenges and solutions to business transformation, leadership and culture change, and how to build organizational agility into everything. There is plenty to be discovered by those who want to understand from where thought leadership comes, its benefits, and how to create thought leadership to drive results and advance your career. Program of activities include plenty of networking opportunities in the morning, noon, and afternoon, plus panel discussions and breakout sessions followed by a closing reception at the iconic ART HOTEL in the early evening.

Prominent keynote and featured speakers include:

Dr. Jack Straus, Miller Endowed Chair of Applied Economics at the Daniels School of Business, Reiman School of Finance, University of Denver;
