MESSAGES FROM NABWIC'S CHAIR ANN MCNEIL

Profit, Power and Progress in HARD HAT AND HEELS

In the month of March, we celebrated National Women's History Month, a month where we highlight the accomplishments of women who have made an indelible impact in their communities, their cities, their states and/or their industries through tenacity, boldness, strength and unwavering commitment to their causes. As you know, NABWIC's Women's History Month celebration was in the form of hosting 'Hard Hat and Heels' in each of our membership areas. We celebrated, we danced, we prayed, we cried, and we shared past successes and failures. Through all of this, we look forward to future achievements and partnerships as we turn contacts into contracts.

We are officially four months in to 2019, and we must realize that time waits for no one. It is imperative that as business women, we make those calls, set up those business lunches and pursue those contracts. You must remember what your business goals are, attach action plans to those goals, establish timelines for the attainment of those business goals, then work like it all depends on us and have faith like it all depends on God. By the end of this month, each of you should have a testimony of some major business endeavor that came into fruition as a result of your diligence and tenacity. We are in this game, so we must play to win. There is business for all of us to be successful, so let's do what we need to do.

This issue of NABWIC focuses on excitement in the growth of our businesses, partnership benefits and personal values, as we continue to produce a community of leaders as the new face of construction for our community.
