

Call for Peer Reviewers

Clinical Journal for Nurse Practitioners in Women's Health (CJNPWH) invites you to become a peer reviewer. We strive to identify and maintain a strong group of thoughtful and thorough reviewers who are willing to provide constructive critiques of submitted manuscripts. Diversity among our peer reviewers is important; we are looking for advanced practice registered nurses (APRNs) who vary in terms of their role (academic or clinical practice), areas of expertise, and populations served.

Why Become a Peer Reviewer

Here are a few of the many reasons to consider volunteering to be a peer reviewer for CJNPWH:

- You can have satisfaction knowing that you are contributing to the profession by supporting the publication of evidence-based, well-written articles that help your colleagues provide the best possible care for patients.
- You can help authors improve their articles by providing your expertise.
- Reviewing manuscripts helps you improve your own writing skills.
- You can include your peer review activities on your CV for professional recognition.
- You can earn continuing education credit for completing substantive reviews.

Areas of Need

We are especially interested at this time in adding peer reviewers that have expertise in qualitative and/or quantitative research methodologies, mental health, reproductive endocrinology, genetics/genomics, artificial intelligence in clinical settings, and health policy.

If you have APRN colleagues with expertise in these areas, please encourage them to apply to be a peer reviewer for CJNPWH. NPWH membership is not a requirement.

How to Apply

If you are interested in joining our group of peer reviewers, please take the following steps:

1. Read Peer Reviewer Role, Qualifications and Responsibilities.
2. Review the Peer Reviewer Keywords List.
3. Complete the Peer Reviewer Application.
4. Submit your Peer Reviewer Application to Beth Kelsey, Editor in Chief bkelsey@npwh.org by September 30, 2026.