President’s Welcome

The annual national conference is the Popular Culture Association/ American Culture Association’s signature event. Each year, thousands of scholars from many academic disciplines across the globe travel to meet in a major American city to share and discuss their research at the conference in a number of venues: panel presentations, round-tables, special sessions, film screenings, local tours, keynote speaker events, special awards ceremonies, and other events.

This year’s conference is held at the Washington Marriott Wardman Park hotel in Washington, D.C., from April 17-20, 2019. The hotel is located next to the Metro, which allows easy access to downtown D.C. and its attractions, and is within walking distance to Dupont Circle. The conference schedule is available on the website with full details on each day’s offerings.

I am excited about various special events that have been decided on and organized with the Washington, D.C., venue specifically in mind. First, I am honored to present this year’s PCA/ACA Presidential award to White House correspondent April Ryan. Ms. Ryan is the only black female reporter covering urban issues from the White House since the Clinton Administration. She serves on the board of the White House Correspondents Association and is a member of the National Press Club. In addition to her daily work as a journalist, she frequently appears as a political analyst on CNN and many other television programs, including Anderson Cooper 360 and The Late Show with Stephen Colbert. She is the author of The Presidency in Black and White (2015), At Mama’s Knee: Mothers and Race in Black and White (2016), and Under Fire: Reporting from the Front Lines of the Trump White House (2018). Ms. Ryan will be giving a conference keynote address, followed by a book signing. Please check the schedule for location and time.
Secondly, the Association will bestow the prestigious Ray and Pat Browne Award for Contributions to the Popular Arts to multi-award winning actor Doug Jones, who may indeed be the most famous person you may not recognize face to face—but you’ve definitely seen him as Abe Sapien in Hellboy; Pan and the Pale Man in Pan’s Labyrinth; the lead “Gentleman” in the famous “Hush” episode of television’s Buffy the Vampire Slayer; the “Amphibian Man” and romantic lead of The Shape of Water, winner of the 2017 Academy Award for Best Picture; and most recently Commander Saru in the CBS All Access series, Star Trek: Discovery. In addition to these well-known roles, he will also be speaking about his work in short films with a special purpose, including The Butterfly Circus and The Candy Shop. Please check the schedule for location and time.

On a personal note, I also want to thank all of you for your support during the past two years while I have had the privilege of serving you as President of the Association. My term ends at the close of the Washington, D.C., conference, at which time I will be handing the ceremonial gavel to Dr. Kathy Merlock Jackson as the new President. Under her leadership and that of our new Executive Director, Dr. Lynn Bartholome, the Association will continue to thrive. I want to thank these two extraordinary women, as well as the Governing Board of the Association and the rest of our hardworking former and current professional staff, for helping lead the Association into the future. I have been honored to work for the entire membership as your President and will always consider this service to be a personal and professional highlight of my life. On behalf of the Popular Culture Association/American Culture Association, I would like to thank all of you for your dedication and service not only to this organization, but the larger cause of the scholarly study of popular culture. I look forward to seeing you in Washington, D.C.!

Phil Simpson, PCA President

Master of Arts Program

The Department of Popular Culture at Bowling Green State University is a nationally and internationally recognized interdisciplinary program. Take courses and conduct research on such cultural forms as film, music, literature, television, folklore, new media, ethnography, comics, cultural geography, performance, and globalization! Graduate students work closely with faculty using a wide range of approaches to pursue advanced research on topics of their choice.

Graduates of the MA in popular culture often choose to stay in academia, continuing on for a Ph.D., and/or working in education administration, or as teachers in secondary or higher education. Graduates also move into careers in political activism, NGO/nonprofit work, media and media productions (including television, comics and news), museum or library work, business and journalism.

Assistantships available for qualified candidates.

PCA Endowment

The Endowment of the Popular Culture Association is in its second decade of supporting faculty, graduate students, and special collections through its earnings. From 2004 to the present, the Endowment has distributed close to $500,000 in travel grants, both domestic and international, to graduate students and faculty, fostered the development of special research collections to enhance Popular Culture and American Culture Studies, supported summer research workshops/institutes, and in general, assisted with the professional development of many of the members of the PCA/ACA. We are expecting to provide about $90,000 in grants this year.

Please consider donating to the Endowment. Your investment in the Endowment will be an investment in the future of our professional organization and its members. Please also consider attending our information session on the Endowment which will be held on Saturday morning.

For further information, contact Michael Marsden, Director of the Popular Culture Association Endowment (michael.marsden@snc.edu).

Thanks for your continued support.

Emily Toth

Emily Toth’s future parents started fighting at a fundraising party for the Communist party in New York City in the 1930s. Dorothy Ginsberg, a Jewish activist who wanted to change the world, couldn’t abide the musical tastes of John Fitzgibbons, an Irishman seeking ladies who believed in free love. After her trip to Margaret Sanger’s clinic, they were married and produced Emily Fitzgibbons—who knew all her life that she was a wanted child. She’d have to speak up for her feminist ideals and her musical tastes (Motown, Stax).

As a Lakewood (Ohio) High School nerd, and editor of the school newspaper and its humor column, Emily often embarrassed herself by not catching double meanings. At Swarthmore College she was a civil rights worker. While in grad school for her comparative literature Ph.D. at Johns Hopkins University, she married Bruce Toth (rhymes with both), who campaigned with her against the Vietnam War. Emily also created Hopkins’s first Women’s Studies courses. Although one professor called her “brilliant and wacko,” she was the only one to get an academic job—whereupon she embarked on some 40 years of filling students’ minds with historical truths, feminist ideas, and subversive humor. When she encountered the Popular Culture Association in 1972, she knew she’d found her tribe, and intellectual home full of people with endless curiosity and love of the bizarre.

She loved being able to “fight about anything” at PCA—including the time she helped create a Women’s Caucus, because the men were flooding the program with their, um, scholarly papers on pornography. Later the Emily Toth Award at PCA recognized the best book of the year in women’s studies and popular culture—and those were the feisty, outspoken books that attacked conventional beliefs and laughed at them.

Emily Toth’s own first book, The Curse: a Cultural History of Menstruation, was called “a blessing and disgusting.” The Popular Culture Association was the only conference where she could present that material. Most of her other ten books were also presented at PCA, including biographies of Kate Chopin and of Grace Metalious (author of Peyton Place, which is “really sincere trash perfect for PCA,” said one audience member). PCA audiences appreciated her prizewinning historical romance, Daughters of New Orleans, and flocked to her academic advice sessions as “Ms. Mentor,” the salty advice-giving Miss Manners of academe. Emily Toth was also one of the first PCA-designated Pioneers of Popular Culture.

Emily Toth is the Robert Penn Warren Professor in the English Department at Louisiana State University, where she now teaches part-time courses on women’s creativity to women of a certain age. A Unitarian activist, she’s still an iconoclast who likes to prod conventional people and make them think, argue, and learn. The Popular Culture Association has always nurtured that spirit.

Susan Koppelman

Born in 1940 to Frances Bollotin and Edward Nathan Koppelman in Cleveland, Ohio, Susan Huddis Koppelman loved Cleveland Heights High School, where she joyfully played her Baritone in the concert and marching bands and worked on The Crest, the prize-winning literary magazine. She also loved the good education she received at the Park Synagogue weekend religious school. Later, at Barnard College, she “majored” for three years in seeing West Side Story at the Wintergarden Theater at least once a week; after her father’s death in 1961, Susan went home to be with her mother. Dr. Koppelman finished her undergraduate degree at Case-Western Reserve with a triple major in Comparative Literature, Psychology, and Economics. She married John Cornillon in 1962; they moved to Boston for John’s studies at Crane, the Unitarian Universalist theological school at Tufts University and for Susan’s job as the librarian for the Unitarian Universalist Historical Society at Tufts.

Susan earned her M.A. in English and American Literature from the Ohio State University. Later returning to Boston, she established an Adult Education facility under the auspices of the Unitarian Universalist Church. In 1967, she taught her first Women’s Studies course, “The Problems and Potential of Women.” Susan and John’s son, Edward Nathan Koppelman Cornillon, was born in 1968. The family soon moved to Bowling Green, Ohio to join a revolutionary graduate program in Popular Culture, led by Ray Browne. As a teaching fellow, she taught Women and Literature courses in the English Department at Bowling Green State University (BGSU) and worked as an instructor in the BGSU Experimental College from 1971-1974. She also taught the first Women’s Studies course at BGSU and established the first battered women’s shelter in Wood County, Ohio (BGSU’s home).

In 1974, Susan’s family moved to St. Louis for her job at Washington University. In 1975, Susan received her Ph.D. from Bowling Green State University, with a focus on American Women’s Literature and Popular Culture; in the summer of 1975, she earned a Post-Doctoral Certificate in Higher Education Administration from the University of Wisconsin. In 1976, Susan became disabled by chronic illness and had to retire. Although she was barely able to leave her home for several years, thanks to sister feminists who loved and supported her work, Koppelman was able to continue with her research. The support of her work by her husband made the work possible in all of the most practical ways.

After a hiatus from publishing of twelve years, she finally published the first three of ten thematic collections of U.S. women’s short stories, beginning with Old Maids: Short Stories by Nineteenth Century U.S. Women Writers (1984). Her next book, The Other Woman: Stories of Two Women and a Man was also published in 1984; this was followed by the third collection, Between Mothers and Daughters: Stories Across a Generation, in 1985. These three books, along with the earlier Images of Women in Fiction: Feminist Perspectives, established Koppelman’s role as a key feminist literary historian with a vision of women’s short stories as astonishingly potent archaeological sites. All the layers of women’s lives are stored in these stories; the stories could be excavated endlessly for their riches. Koppelman embarked on a regime of reading and note-taking on a minimum of three new short stories a day, seven days a week and continued to do so for more than 30 years. By working in this fashion, she discovered what appeared to be the central subject revealed by endless scrutiny of women’s stories—the mother/daughter relationship: good mothers, bad mothers, lost mothers, poor mothers, rich mothers, dead mothers, and those same kinds of daughters too. Other themes, neither named nor noticed before feminism, now moved into the sphere of academe—women’s friendships, women’s relationships with our own bodies, battering and resistance, how women celebrate…

Koppelman has edited twelve books and co-edited two others. She began her publishing career with the 1972 Images of Women in Fiction: Feminist Perspectives, one of the first from Ray and Pat Browne’s Popular Press. Her own short stories have also been published in Hurricane Alice, Blithe House Quarterly, Winter Harvest, and other publications. Susan’s work has always been guided by her faith that if there is something to write about, women have written about it.

At the Second Annual PCA Meeting in 1972 at the University of Toledo, Koppelman introduced Women’s Studies to the popular culture movement. In subsequent years, she introduced Fat Studies and Disability studies to national PCA/ACA conferences, and Collections, Collectibles, Collectors, and Collecting to Southwest PCA. She has loved being a pioneer of this great movement in which we insist on the right to study everyday life, to look at what’s going on around us, to take seriously the arts and artifacts, the popular and peculiar pursuits of daily life, and the lives of people who work for a living.

Koppelman was president of the Midwest Popular Culture Association and co-founded the Women’s Caucus of the Popular and American Culture Associations. In 1998, she was the first woman to receive ACA’s Governing Board Award for Outstanding Contributions to American Culture Studies. In addition, PCA/ACA has presented the Susan Koppelman Award for the Best Anthology, Multi-Authored, or Edited Book in Feminist Studies annually since 1985. As a founding member of the National Women’s Studies Association, she introduced the organization to Popular Culture Studies, Fat Studies, Disability Studies, and co-founded the Jewish Studies interest group. Dr. Koppelman has been an editorial assistant for several university presses, reviewed books, and published articles in countless publications such as Belles Lettres and Off Our Backs.

As a student of Ray Browne and a pioneer of Popular Culture Studies ‘First Generation,’ Susan sums it up like this: “I love the intellectual generosity of PCA folks and their great enthusiasm for their work. I think those attitudes are Ray Browne’s most awesome legacy.”
Ray and Pat Browne Award Honoree

Doug Jones

This multi-award–winning actor is possibly the most famous person you’ve never seen. After a 30 year career under heavy make-ups, but in memorable roles such as the goofy zombie ‘Billy Butcherson’ in Hocus Pocus, Doug Jones was thrust to the forefront as the blue fish-man sidekick, ‘Abe Sapien’, in Hellboy.

He took this kind of work to new heights with his role as the romantic leading ‘Amphibian Man’ in Guillermo del Toro’s Academy Award 2017 Best Picture The Shape of Water, and his dual roles as ‘Pan’ and the ‘Pale Man’ in the multi-Oscar–winning Pan’s Labyrinth. He also played the ‘Silver Surfer’ in Fantastic 4: Rise of the Silver Surfer, and his award-winning performance reprising ‘Abe Sapien’ in Hellboy II: The Golden Army. His favorite movie as a “human” is the sweet, underdog title role in My Name Is Jerry. You can also see Doug’s special haunting roles in Legion, Quarantine, John Dies at the End, and as the title character in the upcoming remake of Nosferatu. This is the niche that garnered Doug Jones a coveted slot in Fangoria Magazine’s Hall Of Fame.

Critics have loved his TV work in the highly praised new CBS/AllAccess series Star Trek: Discovery as Commander Saru. Doug also won critics over with the ‘Skin & Bones’ episode of NBC’s Fear Itself, and as the lead ‘Gentleman’ in Buffy the Vampire Slayer’s ‘Hush’ episode. Doug also enjoyed playing ‘Dominique Wilkins’ in ABC’s comedy The Neighbors, the lead ‘Ancient’ vampire in Guillermo del Toro’s FX series The Strain, DC Comics’ supervillain ‘Deathbolt’ in the CW’s Arrow and The Flash, and the helpful alien ‘Cochise’ in Steven Spielberg’s TNT series Falling Skies for the final three seasons.

The newer medium of Web Series has been good to Doug with series regular, recurring, and guest roles on the popular shows The Guild, Dragon Age-Redemption, Fallout-Nuka Break, and the hilarious Research with Barry Bostwick.

Doug also loves short films with a special purpose, and has starred in a few that he loves to talk about—The Butterfly Circus about a man born without limbs who finds a sense of family and purpose; Sudden Death!, a hilarious musical; and The Candy Shop, addressing the harrowing issue of child sex trafficking happening right here in the USA.

But don’t let Doug Jones’ resume scare you. Even with some darker titles in his filmography, he chooses those projects because of redemptive storylines and, even if he has to play the bad guy or an otherworldly creature to help them be told. Doug and his wife Laurie hail from Indiana where they both met at Ball State University, love those Midwestern values, and are active members of their home church.

April Ryan

White House Correspondent April Ryan has a unique vantage point as the only black female reporter covering urban issues from the White House—a position she has held since the Clinton administration. On behalf of the American Urban Radio Networks and through her “Fabric of America” news blog, she delivers her readership and listeners (millions of African Americans and close to 300 radio affiliates) a “unique urban and minority perspective in news.” Her position as a White House Correspondent has afforded her unusual insight into the racial sensitivities, issues, and attendant political struggles of our nation’s last presidents.

April can be seen almost daily on CNN as a political analyst. She has been featured in Vogue, Cosmopolitan, and Elle magazines, The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico—to name a few. She has also appeared on The Late Show with Stephen Colbert, Anderson Cooper 360, Hardball, Meet the Press, Real Time with Bill Maher, and many other television news programs. April is the 2017 National Association of Black Journalist’s Journalist of the Year and a Terker Fellow with the George Washington University School of Media and Public Affairs.

April Ryan has served on the board of the prestigious White House Correspondents Association; she is one of only three African Americans in the Association’s over 100-year history to serve on its board. She is also an esteemed member of the National Press Club.

April is a Baltimore native and Morgan State University graduate; she gives back to this community by serving as a mentor to aspiring journalists and assisting with developing “up and coming” broadcasters. April considers her greatest life’s work raising her two daughters, Ryan and Grace—who are phenomenal young women in their own right.

April Ryan is the author of the award-winning book, The Presidency in Black and White (2015) and At Mama’s Knee: Mothers and Race in Black and White (2016), where she looks at race relations through the lessons and wisdom that mothers have given their children. A paperback version of The Presidency in Black and White—with updates about the Trump White House—is also available. This paperback edition is a Washington Post best seller. April’s latest book, Under Fire: Reporting From the Front Lines of the Trump White House, was published in September, 2018.

When aspiring filmmakers Jeff Krulik and John Heyn visited the Capital Centre parking lot on May 31, 1986, they had little more in mind than to document a fan scene at full peak. What they ended up creating was a cult film now considered among the greatest rock documentaries of all time. Just under 17 minutes long, Heavy Metal Parking Lot features local heavy metal fans expressing their enthusiasm for Judas Priest before the band performed in concert that night. More than 30 years later, the film continues to resonate with fans around the globe. Krulik is the winner of the PCA/ACA 2004 Peter Rollins Documentary Film Award.

CALL FOR PAPERS
Deadline May 15

Science Fictions
Popular Cultures
Academic Conference

SCIENCE FICTIONS, POPULAR CULTURES is a scholarly academic conference which runs in conjunction with the HawaiiCon.com fan convention on the sunny western coast on the Big Island of Hawai’i at the Sheraton Kona Resort & Spa at Keauhou Bay. SFPC conference registration also provides access to all HawaiiCon fan and gaming events.

SCIENCE FICTIONS, POPULAR CULTURES seeks to both defy and redefine how the academy views the intersection between science fiction and popular culture—and the research, scholarship and creative endeavors of those working across these fields. An academic, peer-reviewed and refereed Conference Proceedings will be published in conjunction with the event.
