Congratulations

PVDA member Kathy Curtis had an exciting September! Her horse Jimi (“Hynder”) participated in the FHANA Friesian horse keuring held at Frying Pan Park in Herndon, VA on September 29, 2015. Jimi was ridden in the IBOP Dressage Suitability Class by Molly Xanthopoulos of Xanthopoulos Dressage Horses and received a score of 78, earning him the Reserve Champion placing out of 33 rides for the 2015 IBOP tests conducted throughout North America, only .5% behind 1st place. Jimi was also evaluated in the in-hand class where he was given a score of 8.5 for his trot which is very rare and a score of 7.5 on his walk. He was awarded the 1st Premie Star designation, which is given to approximately 5% of the Friesian breed presented for evaluation. He was also given the title of Day Champion.
The Charles County Chapter of PVDA hosted a clinic with Ulla Parker on September 13th at the fabulous facility of Cedar Creek Farm. Ulla Parker is a Danish native and resides on the Eastern Shore of Maryland. She is a Master Bereiter and USDF silver medalist. She has trained with and worked for top trainers in both Europe and the States, among them Mikala Gundersen, Lars Petersen, and Scott Hassler. She has ridden in clinics with Michael Klimke, Debbie McDonald, Ingo Pape, and Steffen Peters. She won the East Coast Selection Trial for 6 year olds in 2012 and was qualified to go to Verden. In 2014 her students earned Silver medals, Regional Championships, BLM championships, and placed in the top 10 at the National Championship. If you can't tell…. Ulla is a great trainer and gets great results!

I have to admit when I saw the lineup of riders I was a bit nervous. My trainer, who is a fabulous rider of course, was riding two horses at the clinic and some of the other riders were Ulla’s regular students and rode as high as Prix St. Georges and have won multiple medals and awards. Pretty intimidating company.

I recently purchased a four year old Quarter Horse who is just learning dressage and as a rider I have only shown Intro Level. I had to wonder if I was shooting a bit high coming to a clinic with so many good riders. Would I be disappointing to teach? Would the other riders wonder why someone at my level thought I could come to the same clinic as them? But I had helped organize the clinic and figured I should certainly attend and do my best.

I arrived shortly after my instructor starting riding so I got to watch some of her lesson. It was going fabulously of course – she and her student’s horse looked great, and Ulla was giving out her trademark phrase of “Yaaaah. That looks good.” Not that I wanted something bad to happen during their lesson but I may have felt a bit more confident going into mine if theirs wasn’t going quite so well!

I was next in the lineup and we began in the walk, working on bend and staying on the circle. Ulla pointed out that when my mare’s outside shoulder drifted out I needed more inside leg because it meant we were not going forward enough to get the proper bend. I had been giving her a bit more outside leg so this was a good “aha” moment for me. Forward movement is key to getting good bend. Ulla said, “think of it like a bicycle. If you aren’t going forward enough, you won’t be able to steer.”

She also pointed out that I let my mare get away with bits of naughtiness without correcting it immediately. For example, there are times she evades by moving off sideways and she reminded me I need to correct it strongly and quickly or she would learn evasion was possible. It has to be 100% clear to her that she won’t get away with any evasion, ever.

Other items we worked on were the fine line between going with the forward movement without giving it away, and making sure the inside hind leg was pushing. I have a tendency to ask for more forward motion but then guard against what “might” happen. It’s a bad habit because it will shut down a young horse that should be learning forward is a good thing. With a little bit of coaching, I got the trot and the kudos from Ulla we were searching for, “Don’t accept anything but this trot…. Yaaaaah!”

I learned a lot during my lesson but I learned something really monumental as I watched the other lessons after mine. I kept hearing the same things I had heard during my lesson. Sure they were doing more advanced movements and wow, their horses were beautiful and strong and talented, but in the end dressage is about the basics over and over again and even at the higher levels, the basics are essential.

I heard, “Get the hind leg and keep her connected.” Later when one rider was practicing their counter canter, I heard, “You need to ride counter canter just like you do regular canter – don’t be afraid to let it out and bring it back in. Be careful she is not running. She needs to push. Bring her back in with a quick hind leg.” And then, “Tell those hind legs to push, not just move... … yaaaah... beautiful!”

Later I heard, “Goal is to keep the same rhythm in the trot... Collect a bit more but keep the same rhythm.”

Okay...so they were doing much more advanced movements than us, but in the end they were still working on keeping the hind leg pushing and keeping a regular tempo, just like me and my mare.

After the clinic I asked Ulla who she likes to teach, expecting her to say the top level riders. She surprised me by saying, “What I love is the ‘aha’ moments and that happens at all levels. I just like to teach someone with an open mind who is willing to learn.”

What an ‘aha’ moment for me. There is no reason to be intimidated about riding in clinics, no matter the level of the other riders. Dressage is about where you and your horse are at that moment, trying your best and improving on what you did yesterday. At every level the basics are still important and something we all go back to over and over again – keep that pushing power going from behind, maintain the bend, straightness and relaxation.

Some other great tips I heard:
• Half halt before and after the movement so she doesn’t get too strong in your hands. Always start and finish with a good half halt.
• The half halt needs to be a little bit stronger when she is not engaging in the back-end right at the start so you don’t have to correct so hard later.
• It’s not enough that she comes back in collection, she needs to keep the swing her back too.
• Keep steady, positive tension in the reins. He can’t come through if you keep throwing it away.
• Use transitions. Bring her back, push her forward.
• Don’t use the outside rein to hold him to the track. He has to do it because of your inside leg.

So what is my take away message? Attend clinics! I hear from folks all the time why they don’t attend – “I don’t like people to see me ride.” “I need to get more lessons before I can go.” And my favorite, “I’d be a waste of the clinician’s time.” You aren’t ever a waste of a clinician’s time. Remember that they all began at the bottom and most of them begin at the bottom over and over again as they bring along new horses. What is important is that you come with the open mind Ulla mentioned, the willingness to learn, and the ability to listen and work hard during your lesson. Hope to see you at the clinics!

Peninsula Dressage
Report submitted by Laurel Bullock
Peninsula Dressage held our 4th show on September 12th at Winterplace Park in Salisbury; it was our smallest show this year. Despite that, all who attended enjoyed the show and we were able to work around the rain. Thank you to our judge, Carolyn Heath Leininger. Due to severe weather, our Women Supporting Women show had to be rescheduled for November 7th at Winaway. We are looking into having Aviva Nebesky do a clinic in October. All our thoughts and prayers to any members who have lost horses this year.

PVDA would like to thank Carolyn Del Grosso for managing the show, Dr. Carol Flippa for handling all of the show entries and Claire Lacey for coordinating all of the wonderful volunteers. A second beautiful day but a bit more humidity. All ran smoothly until just before lunch break when a computer glitch caused us to have to switch to the old fashioned calculator method. Our ace scoring team led by Tracy McKenna carried on and things went very nicely. A great team effort made the day a great success.

PVDA Schooling Show

PVDA would like to thank Annmari Ingersoll for managing the show. What a great day we had at Begin Again Farm! Thank you to John and Michele Alexander Spaulding our hosts - once again going above and beyond not just letting us on their beautiful farm but setting up EVERYTHING! Thank you to Aviva Nebesky for your kind and instructional comments for each rider and maintaining the schedule. Thank you to the many riders traveling to us from the Tri-County area and all the Western dressage riders for supporting our show and willingly sharing information to all the curious English dressage riders.

The outpouring of support from the St. Mary’s PVDA Chapter for volunteers, riders, and an overstocked food booth.

PVDA Schooling Show

Woodvale Farm, Frederick, Md • September 27, 2015

PVDA would like to thank Jaclyn Sicoli for managing the show and Courtney Swars for handling all of the show entries. Thank you to everyone who came out for our first hosted horse show. Thank you for your sweet comments, help, and support. We had several talented horse and rider combinations ride down centerline and everyone with a smile! I am proud to be part of this horse community and can't wait to see you all again soon. We would also like to give a big “Thank you” to Donna Gatchell for your encouraging comments and consistent scoring during a FULL day of judging Sunday for our first hosted show. Your wisdom and experience helped competitors to make the most out of their tests. Everyone appreciated your positive feedback as well. Lastly, three cheers for working students Erin Hudson and Courtney Swars, for their hard work in general and in preparation for this weekend.
