The American Sports Builders Association (ASBA) was founded in 1965 as the U.S. Tennis Court & Track Builders Association (USTC&TBA) by a group of contractors who recognized the need for an organization that could help them address their mutual problems, set industry standards and keep them informed on issues pertinent to their business. Its name was changed in 2004 to reflect the broad range of work performed by its members. Today, nearly 500 member companies, the ASBA supports the drive for excellence in the industry by maintaining that commitment to quality construction. ASBA is a national organization for builders, designers and suppliers of materials for tennis courts, running tracks, synthetic turf and natural grass fields, or other athletic or recreational surfaces. It is recognized as a centralized source for technical information, including construction guidelines.

The ASBA works to raise professional standards and to insure that consumers receive services of the highest quality. As part of its work to achieve this goal, the association sponsors a certification program that permits experienced tennis court and running track, and field builders to demonstrate their competency by completing an examination on all areas of construction. In addition, ASBA offers an awards program to recognize excellence in design, construction and renovation.

Another priority is education of the industry. The Association sponsors informative meetings featuring a trade show, along with sessions on both basic topics and advanced or newly developed technologies. ASBA publishes newsletters, construction guidelines, position papers and other documents useful to designers, builders, owners and operators.

ASBA’s educational efforts don’t stop with the industry, though. The Association recognizes that the well-informed consumer is more likely to make appropriate decisions. Therefore, ASBA publishes Buyer’s Guides for track, tennis court, indoor and synthetic turf field construction, which are available to anyone contemplating a project. These Buyer’s Guides provide information on the process of selecting a site, choosing a contractor, identifying a surface and so forth. More detailed publications including construction guidelines and constructions and maintenance manuals also are available. Finally, the Association offers this directory of members at no charge; the directory allows consumers to locate design professionals, builders and material suppliers, as well as consultants, trade publications and other industry resources. A publications order form, as well as many free publications, are available on the Association’s web site at www.sportsbuilders.org, as is a searchable database of members.

Like its publications, the ASBA is a resource not only for the professionals who design, build and supply materials for top-flight sports facilities, but for the owners, operators, players and others who enjoy them. The members of the Association recognize that the way to continue interest in sports is to provide an environment that is conducive to enjoyment and/or performance.

Mission Statement

The American Sports Builders Association, a non-profit trade organization comprised of builders, designers and suppliers for sports facilities, exists to promote the highest standards of design, construction and maintenance by:

• Leading in the development and dissemination of current and accurate technical information; and

• Promoting the interests of builders of sports facilities of the type constructed by its members; and

• Providing a forum to gather and exchange ideas and information to improve sports facility construction and maintenance.

The membership of the American Sports Builders Association is guided by honesty and integrity in our words and actions.
Ethics Policies

The Association encourages ethical behavior in the marketplace through publication of its voluntary Code of Ethics, by carrying articles on ethical issues in the Newsline, by including programs on ethical issues in meetings, and by publishing the voluntary Code of Ethics in a certificate-type format suitable for mounting, giving each new member a copy. When situations arise in which the ethical behavior of members is questioned, either by members or non-members of the Association, the ASBA responds in the following manner:

Letters of Complaint

All letters of complaint addressed to the Association or to its Board of Directors are sent to the Ethics Officer (the Immediate Past Chairman) for initial review; a copy of all such correspondence is sent to the Board of Directors with a memo indicating that the matter has been referred to the Ethics Officer and reminding the Board of its obligation to hold such matters confidential; the Ethics Officer first determines whether or not the issue presented is an issue that should be addressed by the Association. Issues to be addressed by the Association will be limited to those matters which relate directly to the Association and will not include those matters relating to business practice or marketplace behavior.

Ethics Procedures.

1. Upon receipt of a written complaint from any source concerning a matter of ethics relating to the ASBA, the Ethics Officer will send a form to the complainant requesting details of the matter.

2. The Ethics Officer will review information submitted by mail or phone, depending upon the severity of the situation, to determine whether or not to send a letter to the party involved, call that party or send a copy of the complaint to that party. Legal Counsel and Board of Directors will receive copies of all correspondence immediately.

3. The Ethics Officer will determine the severity of the situation and will recommend a direction for action. The Board should assist the Ethics Officer in determining appropriate types of investigation of complaints.

4. The Ethics Officer will notify the Board of Directors of any remedial action taken by the Ethics Officer, and on more serious situations, refer to the Board for further action.

5. The Ethics Officer will send a letter of response to both the person filing a complaint and to the person about whom a complaint is filed.
American Sports Builders Association
Code of Ethics

Members of the American Sports Builders Association are dedicated to the highest standards in the design and construction of tennis and track facilities.

Customer satisfaction and safety to the user are our highest goals, and we believe that aesthetic quality can be fully compatible with these goals.

We further believe that these goals can be accomplished only through competition, and through the application of well-proven engineering facts and standards.

TO ACHIEVE THESE GOALS, we pledge ourselves to the following principles:

We accept our responsibility to our customers, to those who use our tennis and track facilities, and to the community at large.

We will be guided by the policies of honesty and integrity in our words and in our deeds.

In the design of tennis and track facilities and in all components integrated into those facilities, we will strive for maximum safety, usability, cost-effectiveness, aesthetic beauty and reliability.

We will encourage research and development of new materials and methods, but we will remember that it is responsible to rely only on proven materials and techniques.

In the installation of materials and equipment, in the construction and renovation of tennis and track facilities, we will not be satisfied with less than the highest quality of workmanship, attention to detail, consistency of performance, and efficiency of management.

We will stand behind our materials, equipment, design and construction, and support all efforts to improve products and service.

We will fulfill all contractual obligations, offer a reasonable warranty on materials, equipment and services, and will perform on such warranty where justifiable claims are in order.

We will encourage competition as the hallmark of the free enterprise system.

We will deal fairly and openly with our associates, competitors, customers and the public, within the limits of the law.

Note: The ASBA has an Ethics Committee which handles ethical issues brought to the attention of the Association. Please refer to the information published elsewhere in this directory.
connections that endure

When you join materials together, you create a precise bond, a vital connection that builds strength in every direction. Our extensive array of professional grade coatings and adhesives builds the first layer, but our bonds extend well beyond the surface. At ICP, we stand behind our solutions, and we’re constantly pushing the building envelope towards enduring success.
