

2019 EARLY CAREER AWARD NOMINATIONS DUE DECEMBER 14, 2018!

Members of the Society for Psychophysiological Research are invited to submit nominations for this year's Award for Distinguished Early Career Contributions to Psychophysiology. We plan to select two awardees, one male and one female.

The period of eligibility is eight years following the completion of doctoral training. Therefore, to be eligible for the award, a nominee must be a current member of SPR who has made noteworthy contributions to the field of psychophysiology and who received his or her doctorate on or after January 1, 2011. Previous nominees who did not receive the award may be nominated again, provided that they remain eligible given the eight-year time limit. For female nominees with children, one year per child can be added to the eight-year time limit.

A letter of nomination should include a summary of the candidate's scientific and scholarly contributions. The deadline for receipt of nominations is Friday, December 14, 2018. Nominees will be contacted and asked to furnish supporting materials by January 15, 2019.

The awardee will receive a plaque and will be invited to give an address at the 2019 SPR meeting in Washington, DC, September 25-29, 2019. In addition, following editorial consultation, his or her presentation will be published in the journal Psychophysiology. It is expected that the winners will provide their award paper to Monica Fabiani, PhD, the Editor of Psychophysiology, shortly before the annual meeting, ideally by August 15, 2019, for inclusion in an early 2020 issue.

Please send letters of nomination to the chair of the Distinguished Early Career Award Committee via email:
