All family lawyers encounter high-conflict cases. Whether it's the timing of the separation or intensity of the conflict, high-conflict separations can hijack a family lawyer's practice.

With a number of different approaches to handling high-conflict files, the family lawyer must be ever discerning. From the moment a client walks into your office, you need to figure out the best way possible to proceed:

- Negotiation is appropriate in certain cases.
- Mediation can be perfect in other cases.
- Or, should you litigate right away?

How do you decide and what factors are important to consider?

Join our panel of experienced lawyers who will answer these questions and help you understand processes that are available throughout the life of a high-conflict file or one that becomes high-conflict.

Speakers: Dr. Linda M. Ippolito (negotiate), Sheridan, Ippolito & Associates
Michael Kleinman (mediate), Kleinman Gordon Family Law
Cheryl Goldhart (litigate), Goldhart & Associates

Moderator: Audrey Shecter, Beard Winter LLP
