Developing a SART in Indian Country

Bonnie Clairmont
Victim Advocacy Program Specialist
Tribal Law and Policy Institute

Gwenytha Parrish, RN MSN SANE
ED Lead Clinical Nurse
Tuba City Regional Health

Wednesday, April 18, 2018

3:00pm - 4:30pm (Eastern)

Tribal nations have been developing culturally appropriate programs and adapting existing response models to create appropriate responses to sexual assault. One such model is the Sexual Assault Response Team (SART). SART establishes a multidisciplinary team that collaborates to create a coordinated response to sexual assault. Bonnie Clairmont will share her experiences, challenges, successes and the importance of developing practices and protocols that are responsive to the immediate needs of adult victims of sexual assault victims and overall benefits to the criminal justice response.
