Tips for Organizing the Case File

- 1. Case file is spacious enough to hold all required documents
- 2. Legible case file tag on each file w/ case number, DOA, P.A.'s name, and case size
- 3. If MG: this is clearly marked on file exterior
- 4. If case contains attached minor, this is clearly marked on file exterior
- 5. File is divided into appropriate sections/tabs
- 6. Each section has a cover page with a heading and list of documents in that section
- 7. Each case note includes service date, mode of service, staff name, who provided language interpretation when needed and the note itself
- 8. If case note log contains notes from more than one program, indicate the program/funder name
- 9. If file contains documents for more than one program, they are separated
- 10. All files are uniformly organized each document is found in same location in all files

Case File Reviews

- Establish specific timeframes for file reviews, e.g. 30-days, 80-days, prior to submission of R&P Period Report.
- Prior to R&P period report submission, cross check report with case file for consistency and accuracy.
- Create cover sheets containing check lists of case file supporting documentation.

Quality Assurance Training

- Provide detailed training for staff, volunteers, and interns on case file organization and supporting documentation.
- Establish a uniform order for all contents of case files allowing for increased efficiency with case file audits and ease for finding required case documentation.
