Waste Industry Marketplace

The Waste Industry Marketplace is a free program that encourages NWRA members to do business with other members whenever possible. This program delivers a new level of value by directly connecting member businesses with special offers and promotions from other NWRA member companies.

Economic Reports

The NWRA Statistics and Standards program provides members with Monthly Economic Advisor reports, an economic analysis and data on the waste and recycling industry. Each day more information is being developed with service members in mind from safety information and business demographics to waste stream information and more.

Standards & Safety Programs

NWRA's Safety Committee is dedicated to bold, strategic efforts focused on best-in-class safety performance.

NWRA's Safety Monday e-newsletter, videos, safety manual, and seminars help you train your personnel to reduce injuries and fatalities.

NWRA's ANSI safety standards set performance standards for waste and recycling equipment and facilities in all 50 states.

NWRA's certification program will support your education efforts by recognizing proficiency in driver safety, potentially reducing your liability and costs.

Education, Information & Market Statistics

NWRA's highly attended and in demand webinars focus on topics and trends important to our members.

Newsletters, industry reports and educational sessions keep you informed about the latest trends and help you make informed business decisions. NWRA's market statistics and data program provides economic trend analysis and forecasts for your industry, helping you gauge your company's performance and develop better business plans.
