ABOUT AABANY

WHO WE ARE

Founded in 1989, the Asian American Bar Association of New York (AABANY) is among the largest diverse bar associations in the country. AABANY is dedicated to Pan Asian attorneys and legal professionals in New York as well as the communities they serve. With over 1,500 members (based on paid memberships), AABANY is a nationally recognized leader among diverse bar associations.

Now in its fourth decade, AABANY is a full service, professionally managed diverse bar association providing:

- Diversity Pipeline Programs
- Judicial Diversity Efforts
- Award Winning Pro Bono & Community Services
- Extensive Educational Panels & CLE Programs
- Business Development & Networking Opportunities

Despite the pandemic, AABANY maintained an active calendar of approximately 14 events each month. Its pipeline programs have seen a substantial number of participants promoted to partnership by prominent law firms. In the present economic and political climate, AABANY has increased its efforts on racial justice and judicial diversity issues, and continued to serve the legal profession and its communities via remote operations.
Dear AABANY members, Sponsors and Friends:

When we celebrated you and AABANY at our biggest dinner yet at Cipriani Wall Street in February 2020, none of us could have imagined the extent to which our world would change just two weeks after that.

Each one of us has faced tremendous challenges, both in our professional and personal lives. Yet AABANY was at the forefront, actively promoting the interests of the Asian American community. Together we rose to the challenges before us and exemplified our theme “Stronger Together: Unity in Diversity.”

With you, we spearheaded the fight against Anti-Asian violence and discrimination, promoted Diversity, Equity and Inclusion through our many programs, and supported the community in a time of great need. AABANY spoke out against anti-Asian rhetoric, harassment, and violence due to Covid-19 including sending letters to the United States House of Representatives and the United States Senate to urge them to publicly denounce the increase in racist attacks and discrimination. Our Pro-Bono legal clinic immediately went virtual and continued to serve those in need. Our committees galvanized and AABANY engaged in over 70 virtual panels, CLE courses, and networking events and welcomed close to 400 attendees at our Fall Conference.

We met with Secretary Jeh Johnson to make recommendations to his review and report of racial bias in the New York state court system. We joined other bar associations in condemning the violence which unfolded around our country including in our Capitol.

And that was not all. We launched our Legal Referral and Information Service, devoted to providing legal services to the Asian American community. We relaunched our Advisory Committee and our Leadership Development Program has continued to thrive.

None of the work that AABANY does is possible without your generous support and commitment. In this most challenging of years, you have helped us grow to the largest we have been, over 1500 strong, and given us the honorable distinction of being the largest and most prominent diverse Bar Association in the country.

I’d like to express my gratitude to the Board and Yang Chen our Executive Director for their support and dedication in helping lead AABANY during one of our most difficult years. I’d also like to express my best wishes to Terry Shen as he takes over the helm of this amazing organization and leads us to even greater heights.

Very truly yours,

Sapna W. Palla
AABANY President
Dear AABANY Members, Sponsors and Friends,

We are delighted to have Sneha Desai, Frank Wu and the Honorable Denny Chin as special guests for our Virtual Gala. Each of them exemplifies the diversity, inclusion and equity principles that are at the core of AABANY’s steadfast mission. They honor us with their friendship and support.

From its humble beginnings in 1989 to its current standing as the largest diverse bar association in the country, AABANY’s success has made it a nationally recognized leader among diverse bar associations. With over 1,500 paid members, AABANY is one of New York’s most vocal attorney groups.

Even during the pandemic, AABANY has remained vigilant and dedicated to its work for the legal profession and the community. We have devoted our time and resources to COVID-related public service campaigns, anti-hate crime initiatives, award winning pro bono work and professional pipeline enhancement programs. Weekly membership mixers have buttressed our sense of community. AABANY’s Student Leaders have invigorated our membership and deployed their efforts to where they were needed most during the pandemic. During my four years of service as a member of the Board, I shared the broad perspectives I gained as a law firm partner and investment banker in developing AABANY’s business strategy. Despite the pandemic, we have engaged in impactful dialogs with our members and strengthened our invaluable relationships. Through the unwavering support of our sponsors who share our vision and believe in the priority of our work, we have attained a strong and sound fiscal position as a leading diverse bar association.

I’d like to express our gratitude to Sapna Palla for her dedication and leadership as AABANY’s President during one of our most difficult years. Through her work, our organization is as strong as ever. We will continue this momentum.

Very truly yours,

Terrence L. Shen
AABANY President-Elect
Dear Friends,

On behalf of the Asian American Bar Association of New York, I welcome you to our 2021 Virtual Gala. Thank you for joining us to celebrate AABANY’s thirty-second anniversary.

In the midst of our celebration, let us remember and pay homage to one person who has been tragically taken from us: Corky Lee.

Corky Lee -- the unofficial, undisputed Asian American Photographer laureate -- was a constant and beloved presence at all of our Annual Dinners. I cannot recall a single one that he did not attend. We have a treasure trove of memories from all the wonderful shots he took of our honorees, speakers, and guests, on the podium, at the pre-gala reception, at the after-party.

But Corky was not just at our event; he was everywhere in the community. It could have been the AALDEF gala at Chelsea Piers or one of many community group celebrations in Chinatown. It could have been at a street festival or press conference on the steps of City Hall. If it was an event important to the New York Asian American community, Corky was there, to observe and document and ultimately to share with the world what he saw through his lens. In this way, he made visible a community that all too often was overlooked and disregarded.

Corky’s name in Chinese is Lee Young Kwok. The character “Young” 樂 means “to raise” and “Kwok” 國 means “country” or “nation,” so his name translates to “Lift Up the Nation.” By documenting and sharing the many sides of the various communities that make up Asian America, he fights racial injustice, hatred, bigotry, ignorance, discrimination, and xenophobia. His photographs help complete the picture of America by including all those who make this country great. Corky, indeed, Lifts Up the Nation.

Thank you, Corky, for everything. We love you, and we miss you, but we will never forget you.

Sincerely,

Yang Chen
