Membership Categories

Active Member $75.00

For those people actively involved in the field of code enforcement and/or regulation of health and safety. Active Members are entitled to voting rights, bi-monthly publication of the AACE newsletter and conference registration discounts.

Associate Member $75.00

For those not actively involved in the field of code enforcement and/or regulation. Enjoys bi-monthly publication of the AACE newsletter and conference registration discounts.

Governmental Membership

This membership has several tiers based upon population. All have an unlimited number of non-voting members and a set number of voting members. This membership type is for government entities, not individuals. The government entity then provides names of employees to be added as voting or non-voting members. The fees are paid annually. See the chart below for more information:

Population	Voting Member	Fees
0 to 25,000	2	$100
25,001 to 50,000	4	$250
50,001 to 150,000	6	$400
150,001 to 300,000	10	$700
300,001 and over	12	$850

* Data from most current United States census survey shall be used to determine population of a Governmental Member.

Our Incorporation

The American Association of Code Enforcement was incorporated March 12, 1988 by representatives from five states. We have since grown to an organization with members representing 44 states, the District of Columbia and Canada.

Professional Certification

We offer certification programs in the following areas:

- ❖ Zoning Enforcement
Housing and Property Maintenance
- ❖ Certified Code Enforcement Officer
- ❖ Certified Code Enforcement Administrator
- ❖ Master Code Enforcement Professional

These examinations were developed by AACE in conjunction with ICC (International Code Council) and are based on nationally recognized codes. Upon passage, AACE and ICC award certificates and wallet-sized ID cards. Individuals certified by AACE may add the letters CCEO (Certified Code Enforcement Officer) to their credentials. Refer to the AACE Candidate Bulletin for additional information
