

Biography of Jennifer “Jen” Razzino

Jen Razzino is a certified electronic reporter. She has served an active role in the American Association of Electronic Reporters and Transcribers by serving on the Board of Directors from July 2016 to the present, served as the Membership Committee Chair, and has written several articles for the Association’s newsletter Sound Bytes. As chairwomen of the Membership Committee she has started several new initiatives to increase membership numbers and benefits resulting in an increase in membership for AAERT.

She started in the profession in 2012; and since her start has worked professionally with many companies, organizations and federal/state agencies in the Metropolitan DC area. These include; but are not limited to: various depositions, workman’s compensation hearings, Equal Employment Opportunities Commission hearings, trial work, various state and federal court hearings such as circuit and Federal Court of Federal Claims, various arbitrations, various meetings such as Food and Drug Administration, Federal Trade Commission, Defense Nuclear, and Small Business Administration.

Education and Associations:

- Lynchburg College
  - Bachelor of Art in French
  - Minor in Secondary Education
- Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University
  - All course work completed for Masters of Education of a Foreign Language
- American Association of Electronic Reporters and Transcribers
  - General Member
  - Certified Electronic Reporter - American Association of Electronic Reporters and Transcribers from 2013 to present
  - Board Member: July 2016 to present

Jen Razzino, although some may say is still new to the field of electronic reporting, has become an experienced and efficient professional. She is requested by name and asked for specifically for many proceedings due to her professional and out-going nature. She is looking forward to the chance to help members and non-members alike come together and experience the wonderful world of electronic reporting and transcribing through different people’s perspectives. Her vision is to help new professionals in the field of electronic reporting and transcribing; that this field is an area, in which, they are able to grow and develop into a learned professional; who will be able to create and find their own vision and career.