Prior to becoming an electronic reporter, Kathryn (K.C.) Corbin has taken several different career paths. She is currently employed as an official reporter in Hamilton County, Indiana. An avid reader all her life, she possesses strong language skills, mostly due to a love of reading.

Her background as a chef, catering event manager, computer programmer, owner of KC Scope & Scribe (scoping/transcribing business), and court reporter has honed her skills in organizing, planning, implementing, and executing projects in a wide variety of situations, working with a diverse clientele. All these careers have been challenging and exciting in different ways. The common thread to all of them is providing service to customers at some level. K.C. brings the expertise of a varied career path to working relationships.

K.C. joined AAERT in 2009 when she also received her CET certification. In 2012, she became certified as a reporter as well. K.C. completed required studies through Scoping Careers International in November 2007. She holds two associate degrees from Indiana Vocational Technical College, the first in Hotel and Restaurant Management, Culinary Arts major, completed in 1984. The second degree in Business Management was completed in 1994. She was inducted into Phi Theta Kappa Society (the International Scholastic Order of Two Year Colleges) in 1998.

Outside of work, K.C. and Frank enjoy travel, browsing antique stores, and volunteering locally for emergency communications through the amateur (ham) radio community.
