A frequent multifamily speaker for the National Multihousing Council and other associations, Lisa started out as a Leasing Professional who worked part time to finance her undergraduate studies. Upon discovering how much she enjoyed leasing and the apartment industry as a whole, Lisa decided that she would use her teaching degree and apply what she has learned in school to the industry she has grown to love. A dedicated professional, Lisa has contributed to different leasing programs all around the United States. The curriculum development and content specialist has a column titled “On Site Solutions” on UNITS magazine of the National Apartment Association.

Apart from UNITS, Lisa is also a member of Professional Apartment Magazine’s Editorial Advisory Board and a contributor to publications such as the Journal of Property Management, Multifamily Executive, and Rent and Retain. These publications are witness to the apartment trainer’s expertise in resident retention, apartment leasing, apartment technology and maintenance and apartment management. Lisa is a busy woman because aside from being a multifamily speaker for various industry associations and a contributor to different magazines, she also owns APT Listserve and is one of the founders of Apartment All Stars. APT Listserve is an email-based forum for professionals in the apartment industry while ApartmentAllStars.com is a team of experts that provide top-notch instructive programming to apartment associations across the nation.
