AATSP OUTSTANDING SCHOLARLY PUBLICATION AWARDS

The AATSP Outstanding Scholarly Publication is awarded annually to an article published in Hispania. In 2019, the winner was chosen from the categories of literature, film, and culture.

The Editors of Hispania are pleased to announce the winner of the 2019 AATSP Outstanding Scholarly Publication: Pilar Martínez-Quiroga from the University of Illinois. Her article titled “La detective Bruna Husky de Rosa Montero: Feminismo, distopía y conciencia cyborg” (Hispania 101.2, 2018, pp. 306–17) analyzes Montero’s work from a thorough and provocative perspective. This well-focused article offers a fresh view of the contemporary Spanish author’s work in its consideration of feminist theories, the body, and science fiction.

An Honorable Mention goes to Pilar Nieva-de la Paz from the Consejo Superior de Investigaciones Científicas (Spain) for her article titled “Isabel Oyarzábal Smith, una republicana exiliada en México (Rescoldosdelibertad)” (Hispania 100.1, 2017, pp. 114–24), which sheds light on the autobiography of Oyarzábal Smith, written during exile during the twentieth-century dictatorship in Spain.

Both articles are freely available on Hispania's Open Access page.

HELP US COMPLETE OUR ARCHIVE OF HISPANIAS!

Thanks to the generosity of several AATSP members, the National Office now has all issues of Hispania except two! Help us find the missing Hispanias! To complete our archive, we would appreciate the donation of Hispania, volume 59, number 2 (1976) and volume 75, number 4 (1992). Please email Sheri Spaine Long at spainelong@aatsp.org if you have information about the missing numbers or if you would like to donate them to our permanent archive. Thank you!
