

ANSI/ACCT STANDARD UPDATE

The American National Standards Institute (ANSI) Executive Standards Council (ExSC) has approved ACCT's re-accreditation under its recently revised operating procedures for documenting consensus on ACCT-sponsored American National Standards, effective September 4, 2018. This reaccreditation action relates to an exhaustive year-long audit of ACCT procedures.

Founded in 1993, the Association for Challenge Course Technology, (ACCT) is an American National Standards Institute (ANSI) Accredited Standards Developer focused exclusively on the challenge course, aerial adventure park, canopy tour, and zip line industry. ACCT was responsible for the development of the first challenge course industry standards, published in 1994.

In 2006, ACCT became an ANSI Accredited Standards Developer and has maintained that status. This designation indicates that ACCT has an accredited standards development process that is open, fair and allows for an equal representation of material affected parties.
