Built in 1697, the Frankford Avenue Bridge is the oldest continuously-used roadway bridge in the United States. A stone masonry arch bridge over the Pennypack Creek in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, the bridge was in poor condition and underwent a rehabilitation in 2018. Using cost effective repair methodology that provided structural and safety improvements, the rehabilitation preserved the historic bridge for future generations.