Welcome to Orlando, Disney’s Coronado Springs Resort, and the 1999 annual meeting of the Academy of Criminal Justice Sciences. Trust me when I say that we’re extremely glad that this meeting is now underway. Not that we ever lost our confidence, of course, but back in December and January it was hard to see how things could possible come together in time.

Numerous individuals deserve recognition for pulling this year’s program together – most particularly, though, Program Chair Jack Greene and our new Association Manager, Laura Monaco. Laura hasn’t had a day off since joining ACJS on January 4th. She has managed to do in two months what normally took the national office four months to accomplish. When you meet her here in Orlando, please give her your most heartfelt thanks and tell her how glad you are that she’s our new CEO.

The program this year has several outstanding features, including Plenary Sessions each day Wednesday through Friday, receptions Wednesday and Thursday evenings, and a great lineup of over 350 panels. One of the most important events is the Awards Ceremony on Thursday evening from 7:00-8:00 p.m. – please attend and help us recognize this year’s honorees.

My greatest concern is that our outstanding program and ACJS members’ fabled devotion to duty will prevent you from fully enjoying the great weather here in Orlando, this beautiful facility, and all the Disney attractions just a few minutes away. So, please fight those “all work and no play” tendencies. Fight that noble urge to attend every panel, workshop, and roundtable. Pick out some good sessions, of course (and please attend those in which you are on the panel!). But otherwise, follow your doctors’ advice. Relax. Recreate. Enjoy. Get some sun, some fresh air, and have some fun here at Disney World. After all, it’ll be a whole ‘nother century before we meet over on the West Coast in Disneyland.

Dear ACJS Annual Conference Participant:

Welcome to Orlando, home of sunshine, Disney and ACJS’s 1999 Annual Meeting. “Crime and Justice Across the Millennium”. We are especially pleased to host this year’s conference at the Disney’s Coronado Springs Resort, a beautiful setting for our meetings.

This year’s Program Committee, with a lot of help from the newly established ACJS National Office in Alexandria, Virginia, has crafted a challenging and stimulating program, offering over 350 panels, workshops, roundtables, poster sessions, and plenary sessions. Of particular importance are the plenary sessions. On Wednesday, Professor Al Blumstein will speak on violent crime trends and on a national network of academic researchers who are studying many aspects of crime and violence. Also on Wednesday, there is an important plenary session devoted to the new ACJS Code of Ethics. Finally, on Thursday, there is a plenary session focus on concerns with what appears to be a growing “crisis in confidence” with the justice system. The academic community can help understand the dynamics of this crisis in confidence and rebuild public confidence in our systems of justice.

In addition to a fine program of research and scholarship there are several tours available for ACJS conference attendees. These tours focus on aspects of the justice system and private security. And, don’t forget to spend some time at an expansive exhibit hall with publishers from all over the world.

This year’s program has several important receptions. Mark your calendar for the President’s Address and Reception on Wednesday night, and the Awards Presentation and Student reception following on Thursday night.

We hope that you enjoy your stay at the Coronado Springs Resort and also enjoy the surround attractions in Orlando. Once again, welcome to Orlando!

Jack R. Greene
Program Chair

A Sin Against the Future
Imprisonment in the World
Vivien Stern
Foreword by Carl Niehaus

In her penetrating examination of prisons throughout the world, Vivien Stern contends that this mainstay of punishment is an anachronistic and probably counterproductive system for dealing with rising crime rates. She describes the personal and disturbing experiences of prisoners as well as the treatment of minorities, women, and juveniles. This hard-hitting, comparative study of imprisonment exposes the waste, the horror, and the heroism of the growing worldwide business of incarceration.

Broken Promises
Fraud by Small Business Health Insurers
Robert Tillman

This much-needed study of insider health insurance fraud shows how market conditions and weak regulatory structures have allowed criminal practices to occur. With the regulation of health insurance currently in chaos, Broken Promises offers a critical examination of this insidious form of white-collar crime.

Crimes of the Century
From Leopold and Loeb to O.J. Simpson
Gilbert Geis and Leigh B. Benen

"Noted criminologist Geis and law school lecturer Benen present vivid accounts of 5 of the most famous crimes and trials of the 20th century. Though each case is covered from crime through punishment, the approach is historical and legal analysis is remarkable." — Library Journal

Five dramatic trials that dazzled the media and captivated the American public are the subject of this provocative book, which probes the sensational cases of Richard A. Loeb and Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., the Scottsboro "boys," Bruno Richard Hauptmann, Alger Hiss, and O.J. Simpson.

Crimes of the American Nuclear State
At Home and Abroad
David Kauzlarich and Ronald C. Kramer
Foreword by Raymond J. Michalowski

Has the United States led criminally in its development and use of atomic energy and nuclear weapons? In this penetrating analysis the authors describe government policies related to the manufacture, deployment, and testing of nuclear weapons that violate both international and federal regulatory law. They also consider the role that these weapons have played in world affairs, and examine options for the prevention of future nuclear offenses.

With Liberty for Some
500 Years of Imprisonment in America
Scott Christianson

"Eloquent, incisive, and deeply disturbing, this book tells what imprisonment has meant in the American experience." — Mario Cuomo

A penetrating, thought-provoking account of over 500 years of imprisonment in America. This excellent, exhaustive examination of our criminal justice system appears at a crucial time, given the level of resources committed to incarceration and the concomitant debate about their effectiveness. Anyone who wishes to understand more clearly the seriousness of the debate should read this account." — Library Journal

Russian Mafia in America
Immigration, Culture, and Crime
James O. Finckenauer and Elin J. Waring

Does a "Russian Mafia" really exist? This book seeks to answer that question by examining the history of Russian organized crime in both its homeland and the United States. The authors provide the first in-depth study on Russian organized crime since the break-up of the Soviet Union in this eye-opening exposé of America's underworld.

NEW IN PAPERBACK
Death in the Dark
Midnight Executions in America
John D. Bessler

"Bessler contends that people who say they favor capital punishment are uninformed about it; the more they know, the less they'll want it. To this end he debunks common death penalty myths and calls persuasively for a return to openness and accountability."

— Publishers Weekly

"Relying upon primary sources (as well as newspaper accounts), Bessler carefully traces the transition from public to private executions, which are carried out by only a handful of state-approved executioners. He is at his best as a storyteller, writing about the personalities and events that have led to this system." — Michael Mello, The Nation

The New War on Drugs:
Symbolic Politics and Criminal Justice Policy
edited by Eric L. Jensen & Jurg Gerber
This volume examines the various anti-drug campaigns—"drug wars"—that have taken place in the United States, and their effects and implications on the criminal justice system. Included are critical discussions about several drug wars, beginning with the anti-opiate campaign following the enactment of the Harrison Act in 1914, all from the social constructionist perspective. Not ignoring the fact that the use and abuse of drugs can lead to numerous forms of harm, the editors present several alternatives to the drug-war solutions that have been used in the past.

Crime and Law Enforcement in the Global Village
edited by William F. McDonald
This volume represents research and commentary about what the United States and other countries have been doing to combat crime on an international scale. The nature and parameters of the globalization of law are outlined, and a clear rationale is presented that explains why the subject of transnational criminality is of such importance. Emphasis is given to the substantial efforts undertaken by law enforcement officials worldwide to bring more countries into cooperative agreements for the purpose of apprehending and bringing to justice international criminals of all kinds, as it generally has become recognized that the global accountability issue has been raised and endorsed by a host of prominent international players, including the European Economic Community, Canada, the United States, Russia and several Middle Eastern powers.

Debating Corporate Crime
edited by William S. Lofquist, Mark A. Cohen & Gary A. Rabe
This collection examines the issue of how corporations are held accountable for their actions. This monograph explores the multifaceted issues of corporate crime in an issues context. Divided into sections, this volume systematically examines why corporate crime exists; the nature of liabilities in different corporate contexts; the myriad of real or proposed sanctions imposed against corporations; and a reassessment of corporate criminality and the need for change.

Crime Prevention at a Crossroads
edited by Steven P. Lab
This volume examines some of the various challenges facing crime prevention. Different theories and perspectives are presented by leading scholars in the field that can be utilized in conjunction with one another to aid in crime prevention. A consistent theme throughout is the recognition of the need to utilize a wide range of approaches in crime prevention programming.

The goal of this text is to prepare students to be the managers and leaders of today's correctional organizations. Houston first introduces contemporary correctional management and reviews the evolution of management theory. He then discusses the impact of law, the media, and the community on the correctional organization. The text also explores the budget process, leadership, management of others, and ethical considerations.

Cloth/$45.95/325pp./Notes/Index/ISBN 0-8304-1486-X/

This text takes a look at the economic and less publicized “social costs” of gambling in America. Organized chronologically, Risky Business scrutinizes the effects of gambling throughout United States' history and offers a glimpse into gambling in the future based on possibilities provided by the Internet and portable communications.

Provides for students a systematic analysis of the juvenile delinquency problem in the United States in a lucid and interesting fashion. The case material furthers the students' understanding of delinquency problems through the author's analysis and the voices of youths who have found themselves adjudicated as delinquents. It also reveals how the juvenile justice system has changed significantly over the past one hundred years, beginning with the modification of treating juveniles separately and differently from adult criminals at the beginning of the twentieth century.

Paper/$31.95/300 pp./Bibliography/Appendix:

This text provides a comprehensive review of the United States system of justice-including the police, the courts, and corrections. This second edition has been thoroughly updated, but is briefer and more concise than the previous edition. Students are introduced to the entire criminal justice process from beginning to end. The author has expanded his coverage of crime prevention and the juvenile justice system, created new boxed material and suggested readings, and discusses the latest relevant, criminal justice cases.

CRIMINAL JUSTICE
NEW FOR 1999

ALBANESE
Criminal Justice
This contemporary, highly readable Introduction to Criminal Justice text, written by an experienced author and past president of ACJS, places an emphasis on fitting concepts and the criminal justice system together. Its major themes include criminal justice and the media, contemporary issues, and future issues, and it features a comprehensive multimedia supplements program.

BARTOLLAS & HAHN
Policing in America
A comprehensive overview of policing, this is the only text on the market to devote a chapter to the role of female police officers. Written by an experienced author and a practitioner, this book brings an ideal mix of the academic and the practical to the subject of policing. Its writing style and use of human interest stories will appeal to students.

National Institute of Justice
Data Resources Program
Annual Workshop on Criminal Justice Data
June 21–25, 1999

This one-week workshop focuses on a topical area of criminal justice and examines the most important datasets in that area. Lectures are given by guest speakers, often the investigators who originally collected the data. Participants are given the opportunity to explore datasets being discussed and to review many of the major methodological and statistical issues that arise when using the data. Past topics have included recidivism data, police data, violence, community context of crime, longitudinal data, and the impact of sanctions on crime. The topic for the 1999 program is under review.

Social scientists and researchers from colleges and universities, nonprofit organizations, and government agencies are eligible to participate in this workshop. Enrollment will be limited to no more than 20 participants, selected on the basis of their interests in the topical area, prior methodological training, and potential for research contributions to the topical area.

Interested applicants should request application materials from the Inter-university Consortium for Political and Social Research (ICPSR) or obtain them from the ICPSR Website at http://www.icpsr.umich.edu/ICPSR in early 1999. The National Institute of Justice will provide stipend support to offset transportation and per diem expenses for enrolled participants. The workshop is offered as part of the ICPSR Summer Training Program in Quantitative Methods. Participants may apply for other courses in the program at their own expense.

Quantitative Analysis of Crime and Criminal Justice Seminar

Part of the ICPSR Summer Program, this four-week seminar will introduce participants to the major surveys sponsored by the Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS), which are part of the holdings of the ICPSR National Archive of Criminal Justice Data. Through daily class meetings, the instructor and various guest speakers will focus on current theories and models being employed in criminal justice research. Computer-aided data analysis will be an integral part of the seminar. Participants will become familiar with studies that have used BJS data to address important issues in criminology. Enrollment will be limited to ten, and preference will be given to postdoctoral scholars who have prior methodological training. Applicants must show evidence of an intellectual interest and commitment to this substantive area and should include vita with their applications. Stipend support for those admitted will be provided by BJS.

Seminar dates:
July 19–Aug. 13, 1999

Sponsored by the Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS)
Supermax Prisons Video
This new tape from ACA provides a look at supermax prisons in the United States. The video begins with a working definition of a "supermax" prison and explains why inmates are housed at such a facility. The video then examines the history and development of such facilities in the United States, beginning with possibly the most famous, the U.S. Penitentiary at Alcatraz. This video explores the internal and external features and programs of a typical supermax prison and disproves myths along the way. Supermax Prisons includes interviews with experienced administrators and other staff. Also included are details regarding staffing, mental health issues, and inmate transportation. (1999, 25 minutes, leader's guide)

Best Practices: Excellence in Corrections
This publication is the direct result of a project initiated two years ago to identify "best practices" in nineteen areas of corrections. Submissions were received from across the nation and Canada, and evaluated by those knowledgeable in that particular area of the field. Best Practices: Excellence in Corrections is the compilation of those submissions that exhibited positive results and includes: "what works" in corrections today; more than 140 Best Practice finalists; and program and contact information for each finalist. Designed to be a resource guide, this book is a must for corrections officials, legislators and educators. (1998, 608 pages, 1-56991-077-4)

Use of Force: Current Practice and Policy
Craig Hemmens, J.D., Ph.D.
Due to the nature of the corrections environment, staff may be required to use force. But when and how much is appropriate? Designed for use by corrections officers and administrators, this book provides an overview of the use of and current policies regarding force. Topics covered include: historical background on the use of force, discussion on legal issues involved, current use of force practices based on a national ACA survey, and information on effective policies. Also included are samples of policies and further references. (1999, index, 1-56991-098-7)

CALL FOR PAPERS
SOUTHERN CRIMINAL JUSTICE ASSOCIATION

Choo-Choo to Chattanooga
1999 SCJA Annual Meeting Is On Track

Clarion Hotel
Chattanooga, Tennessee
September 28 - October 2, 1999

Conference theme:

“Southern Contributions to 20th Century Criminal Justice: Advances in Community Policing, Courts and Privatization”

The conference theme will be reflected through a series of Presidential Workshops, one each day Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Noted Tennessee practitioners will conduct the workshops. In addition, there will be a workshop on using multimedia in teaching and research held in a multimedia classroom on the campus of UT-Chattanooga (just a few blocks from the Clarion Hotel). The Second Annual Glencoe/McGraw-Hill Luncheon and Awards Ceremony will honor outstanding members. The Program book will highlight Tennessee criminal justice data and programs.

Local arrangements will offer outstanding events. The Tennessee Aquarium is phenomenal (no fishing allowed!). The Chattanooga Choo-Choo is world-renowned (engineers wanted!). An evening riverboat ride, raffles, free giveaways, and more will make the conference fun to attend.

Dozens of members are working hard to make the conference special. Mark your calendar now. If you have any questions, want to help out (after all, Tennessee is the Volunteer state), or give suggestions for the program, call or e-mail. ALL ABOARD....
