Submissions are currently being accepted for the Fall 2023 issue of the official newsletter of the Western Society of Criminology, The Western Criminologist.

Submissions are open-ended, and may include commentaries, case studies, or any other short article that is related to academia, criminology, and/or criminal justice.

You may feature any recent publications to increase their visibility in The Western region by providing a short summary and a link to the article.

• Submission details:
  o Submissions may range from one paragraph to a few pages in length;
  o May include pictures and/ or other graphics; and,
  o Must be submitted in a Microsoft Word document.
  o Examples of submissions can be found in previous issues of the newsletter, available here: http://westerncriminology.org/publications/the-western-criminologist/

Deadline for submissions is September 1, 2023.

• Please send your submissions, along with any questions, to Dr. Victoria Terranova, Editor of The Western Criminologist, via email: victoria.terranova@unco.edu

Ideas for submissions may include:

• A short commentary or perspective piece on a criminology- or criminal justice-topic, current event(s) or recent policy reform;
• A ‘spotlight’ of your recent work or accomplishments in your Department/ School, the work of a graduate student or recent PhD graduate;
• Strategies for students on surviving graduate school and entering the academic job market;
• Teaching tips, strategies and what to expect in your first year of your tenure-track position; and
• Advertisements for student scholarship opportunities, conferences, meetings and non-academic careers for PhDs.
