ACSP Announcements

@@first_name@@,

In partnership with ACSP, the Lincoln Institute of Land Policy (the "Institute") invites educators to submit exemplary courses for a Curriculum Innovation Award. The four selected winners will each receive $7,000 USD.

To prepare future planners to solve economic, social and environmental challenges facing communities world-wide, the award seeks courses that:

- Introduce new topics and themes to planning curricula and courses and/or redefine ways to teach core planning topics;
- Incorporate innovative design of learning experiences to sustain learner engagement, foster creative applications of policies, tools and practices and encourage different ways for learners to express and demonstrate their knowledge and skills;
- Integrate expertise from multiple disciplines, connect theory and research to practice, and incorporate insights from professionals in the field to fill essential knowledge and skills gaps and inspire new ways of thinking; and
- Have been taught with measurable student success and have gathered and used student feedback and data about course implementation to make improvements to course design and teaching practice.
