ACSP Announcements

The Association, under my leadership, will prioritize five distinct strategic priorities that will advance our field.

Advocate for Transformative Change
Expand our anti-racism and our inclusion efforts on behalf of vulnerable populations in this country and globally. Specifically, I would like to support our members’ efforts to better understand anti-Asian racism and its impacts on planning scholarship, education and planning practice in the United States.

Expand efforts to better serve international students and faculty.

Support our members’ efforts to address issues related to physical disabilities and make our living and working environments truly accessible.

Advance Planning Scholarship
Create a framework for ACSP to become more involved in substantive research in partnership with our academic institutions (member programs) as well as our sister associations by serving as a convener of conversations about future planning challenges as well as the challenges of doing planning.

Focus on Climate Justice
Continue to expand our work on Climate Action, emphasizing place-specific and just solutions. This means joining and supporting existing coalitions and movements nationally and globally as appropriate.

Champion Innovative Teaching Models and Practices
Deepen our field’s understanding of emerging online and hybrid education models to assess their impacts on our degree programs and support our members in making transitions that are appropriate to their needs.

Engage Directly with Policymakers
Promote ACSP members’ efforts broadly by creating new publication and presentation opportunities to advance the interests of emerging scholar-educators.

Thank you for your interest in ACSP.

Sincerely,
