I. Introduction of Officers and Recognitions

Thomas announced new officers and regional representatives, and acknowledged those leaving and joining the Governing Board. She also acknowledged outgoing PAB board member Bruce Stiftel and acknowledged incoming member Zenia Kotval. Thomas also acknowledged outgoing and incoming committee chairs.

II. ACSP Treasurer’s Report

Andrews summarized the handout provided to meeting attendees. He noted that ACSP is a $500k+ operation, with the conference being the largest single budget item. Dues have been flat and the Guide is an important revenue source. JPER is has fluctuated between breaking even and producing revenue, with recent revenue increases associated with a newly negotiated contract with Sage Publishers. He highlighted the amount and role of budget reserves as part of total assets and described recent decisions related to investing in strategic initiatives such as the website and marketing. He described finances and investments, noting that funds are in CDs and mutual funds.

III. Past President’s Remarks: a focus on one Connection

June Thomas highlighted her President’s agenda and its focus on connections, including: (1) connections among planning schools and faculty, (2) connections with diverse people, and (3) connections among the planning academy, the profession, and the public.

IV. Introduction of Scott Creamer, Screamer Co.

Takahashi referenced the focus of President’s agenda on connections with the public and highlighted implementation efforts focus on communications and marketing. She described the process for vetting and selecting a marketing firm, including the role of a committee. Scott Creamer of Screamer Co., the selected marketing firm, shared an overview of the marketing effort. Key phases in the process include discovery (information gathering, including from student databases from member schools), brand building, and marketing plan development. The discussion with attendees focused on the availability of school applicant data, data protections available under HIPAA, alternative methods for collecting applicant data, the varied geographic focus of individual school applicant pools, and the length of the term for marketing plan implementation.
