

SUPPORT SENATE FILE 45 : Professional Services Procurement - Consideration of residency during the professional services selection process.

- ❖ Resident design professionals have a vested interest in the State and communities where they practice.
- ❖ Resident design professionals know the local conditions and how to design for them.
- ❖ Resident design professionals know their limitations and can hire consultants with the expertise to design any project that is proposed.
- ❖ Resident professionals generate revenue for their communities and add to the tax base of local, county and state government.
- ❖ Resident professionals support local businesses and turn the dollar over several times. For example, the local architect sends his plans to the local printer who hires local employees who purchase their homes from the local realtor who buys her groceries from the local supermarket. All pay local taxes and help keep the local economy strong.
- ❖ Resident professionals are supportive of State and community functions and organizations.
- ❖ Resident professionals have a sense of State and community pride through our professional work and services.
- ❖ Resident professionals are readily available to our clients for professional service “after the sell”.
- ❖ Resident professionals have elected to live, raise our children and practice in Wyoming.
- ❖ Resident professionals are typically small businesses that provide likeminded young professionals an opportunity to live and work productively in Wyoming.
