It is through the generous support and sponsorships of our Allied members and firm businesses that allows AIA Las Vegas to carry out the mission and vision of our national organization. We strive each year to continue promoting the value of architecture and design, advocating for our members and the profession and educating and supporting architects as leaders in our vibrant world class city.

We were fortunate to build on the partnership success in 2016, our 60th year, through the Visionary Sponsor Level. This $10,000 investment provides expansion in many of our programs and advocacy efforts.

Our thanks and deep appreciation goes out to our Visionary, Platinum, Gold and Silver Sponsors.

Architects share a vision of creating a better world through design. It is this desire to improve the built environment that motivates and inspires young men and women to enter the profession and to use their talents to change their world and communities for the better through their work. In short, it is the idea of providing "Architecture for Everyone".

In the UK, Architecture for Everyone is a nation-wide initiative designed to enable young people to use their talents for design and enthusiasm for their community in a range of creative ways related to architecture and urban design. In Sweden, Japan and China several firms have adopted the name "Architecture for Everyone" in order to announce the focus of their design services specifically to individuals and organizations that feel they can’t afford to hire an architect.

Throughout the world, there is an expanding interest in providing creative design solutions for environmental and economic problems that impact the growth and development of communities. Here in Las Vegas, we are challenged to create a better understanding of architects - what we do and why it is important.

Architects have always understood how quality design of our homes, schools, workplaces and public spaces influences the quality of our lives. As the world becomes more globally connected, architecture must be for everyone. The world offers great opportunities to contribute knowledge, ideas and creativity. They want to be engaged, contribute and make a difference. As we have seen through AIA's "I Look Up" film series, communities across the country are being transformed by good design, and by architects they thought they could not afford.

In 2018, AIA Las Vegas championed the theme of "Architecture for Everyone" in order to build upon the progress of the previous year. Providing programs and services that continued reaching out to elementary, middle and high school students to inform and involve them in architecture; to encourage, support, mentor and guide UNLV architecture students; and to engage affiliated organizations and the public in order to enhance their understanding and appreciation of architecture, quality design and sustainability.

Architecture for Everyone … means a concentrated effort to engage our members and our committees and charge them with providing opportunities that will awaken and enhance the public’s interest and appreciation for quality architecture in their community, as well as demonstrating that architecture is for everyone.

The Chapter has always been the bridge between the professional community and the UNLV School of Architecture. This year we extended our support and provided programs and partnerships to solidify ties between the profession, the school and students. In addition, there was concerted effort to reach out to high schools and the technical academies throughout the Clark County School District and to introduce students to the challenges and opportunities available in architecture through education and as a career.

CONTINUING EDUCATION

Through membership meetings, continuing education luncheons, seminars, special lectures, events, recorded sessions and mentoring, AIA Las Vegas provides more than enough opportunities each year for members to achieve the required continuing education credits and maintain AIA membership and to renew licenses in most states.

This year AIA Las Vegas provided the opportunity to achieve a total of 26.5 Continuing Education credits. 16.5 credits qualified for Health, Safety, Welfare credits, 4 qualified as Codes credits and 5.5 as learning credits.

WAYS TO ENGAGE IN EDUCATION

- SIGN-UP for in-person education, hard hat and facility tours, luncheons, events, committees and meetings at aialasvegas.org
- PARTICIPATE in the AIA Las Vegas | AIAS UNLV Mentoring program as either a mentor or mentee.
- JOIN the AIA National Knowledge Communities.
2018 Advocacy Highlights

The Nevada Legislature was not in session this year, therefore AIA Nevada worked to prepare for the 80th Session of the Legislature happening in 2019. Having succeeded in eliminating the “duty to defend” clause from public works contracts, AIA Nevada has prepared a plan to change the language used in NRS 108 that prohibits architects from filing a lien to receive payment for services they have provided prior to the beginning of construction.

Many small firms are caught unaware when payment for their services are held until after construction has begun, and when in some cases funding fails and the project is canceled. They find they have no recourse for receiving payment for services provided.

AIA Nevada is working with legislators now to change the language and provide a more equitable basis for architects and design professionals to receive payment for services they have provided.
