Description

The entire membership is invited to help plan the 2025 Alltricity Network Spring Management, Engineering & Operations Conference. By attending the planning session, you ensure that the education program provided at the conference addresses the issues critical to your job and your company.

As part of the planning process, Alltricity Network members are encouraged to suggest topics and speakers for the Spring Management, Engineering & Operations Conference. Because this conference targets engineers, managers and operators at utilities, most presentations are technical or engineering focused; however, discussion on current issues and events is also appropriate.

Who Should Attend

The entire membership is invited to help plan the 2025 Alltricity Network Spring Conference. Each member company is encouraged to send at least one representative to this planning session.

Planning Session Goals

- Create a list of critical issues for our industry, relevant to the Management, Engineering and Operations Conference forum.
- Determine agenda items for the Management, Engineering & Operations Conference
- Select general session and breakout session topics.
- Assign an Alltricity Network representative to make initial contact and secure a speaker for each agenda item.

How the Planning Process Works

The Spring Management, Engineering & Operations Conference Planning Sessions starts with a brainstorming session to create a list of critical issues. Attendees will vote on which topics to include in the Conference agenda. Once the agenda is selected, attendees may volunteer to follow up on a topic by suggesting speakers and making the initial contact to secure the speaker. This is an informal collaborative session.
