Two sail canoes from Hawaii have been sailing around the world since 2014. Hokule‘a (means Star of Gladness) and Hikianalia of the Polynesian Voyaging Society (PVS) started from Hawaii on a five year worldwide voyage. They are two traditionally designed voyaging canoes, replicas of the canoes that brought the first Hawaiians to their island home.

Hōkūle‘a and sister canoe Hikianalia are 62’x20’ double-hulled canoes, similar to the ones that Polynesian ancestors sailed. Since she was first built and launched in the 1970s, Hōkūle‘a continues to bring people together from all walks of life.

This voyage is being done almost entirely using traditional Polynesian navigation methods, called wayfinding, as did the late Micronesian Mau Piailug. Kaleo Wong is one of their navigators. Navigators carefully study and revere nature for direction. Wayfinding involves the use of only one’s natural surroundings - stars, clouds, waves, wind, currents, birds and wildlife to guide them. The New York Times magazine March 20, 2016, has an article on wayfinding “Secrets of the Wave Pilots” online and “Sixth Sense” in print edition. Sailing across the Pacific Ocean, they are amid whales, dolphins, storms, and calm winds.

In January 2016, they left the coast of Africa and and sailed to Brazil. This spring they are sailing to the US and up the Potamac River to meet with President Obama. They plan to be in New York City by June 8. Let’s have a meet-up to see them in New York! To learn more and track their voyage, use the website http://www.hokulea.com/. Hawaii’s Polynesian Voyaging Society website has a wealth of information. If interested to meet them on or before June 8 contact Marilyn Vogel, canusailor@yahoo.com.
The end of September, beginning of October, is always a busy time for American Canoe Association (ACA) canoe sailors. Our national races are held near the end of September, closely followed by the popular Mid Atlantic Small Craft weekend at the Chesapeake Bay Maritime Museum in St. Michael’s, MD. Most years there is a week or two gap between the events but this year they were scheduled on consecutive weekends. So, on the recommendation of veteran gunkholer Mike Wick, a few of us decided to fill the three day gap with a camping/sailing trip at Assateague National Seashore, MD. This seemed like the perfect plan since the vehicles would already be loaded with both camping and sailing gear, and Assateague is not that far out of the way, being only 70 miles from St Michael’s. Car-topping a sailing canoe is an advantage since a canoe is lightweight yet stable enough for some serious sailing.

First, the ACA Nationals
The ACA National Races were held on Sept. 26-27, at Union Lake, Millville, NJ and hosted by the Union Lake Sailing & Tennis Club. This is our favorite venue, since the sandy beach is ideal for launching a canoe and because the club members are so accommodating. Even with an aging fleet, we still had sailors traveling from four different states. Most stayed at local motels, some commuted daily and four of us camped at nearby Parvin State Park beginning Friday night. The Park is a beautiful campground located just 12 miles from the ULSCT. Larry Haff and I shared one site while Joan Krilla and Bob Akins shared another. It has become a tradition to display our “Old Guys Rule” sail at every camp.

We sailed for the C-Class (5-Meter) race series on Saturday morning. Rules in this class allow for any sail configuration so long as total sail area is less than 55 SQ FT. All participants arrived by 9:30 AM and had their boats rigged for racing. Winds were increasing, so several boats switched to smaller sails at the last minute. First race was run in stiff, breezy conditions, but was completed without incident. By the start of the second race the wind velocity had increased to 15-20 with gusts to 25 MPH. One by one, the majority of the sailors elected to drop out during the course of the race. One boat capsized 5 times and was eventually towed in by the club safety boat. We won’t mention his name but Bill Covert was later presented a dubious “award”. Only three boats finished the entire race. Needless to say, Race 3 was canceled. Not an ideal start to National’s weekend, but the weather forecast looked brighter for Sunday.
Sunday morning dawned a much more promising day, cloudy but with diminishing winds. Larry and I broke camp and were at the lake by 8:30 AM only to find that we were near the last to arrive. The race series was for ACA Class which requires a 44 SQ FT lateen sail. It is by far one of the most efficient sails available for small craft and must be purchased through the ACA [see page 13]. First race entailed some swirly gusts, but all boats finished without incident. The wind steadily diminished during the final two races for a near perfect day of sailing.

Thanks to Marilyn Vogel for organizing the weekend event, Chuck Sutherland for acting as Race Committee and David Breinig for crafting such beautiful keeper trophies. And a very special thanks to ULSTC members, Ed Kubinski, John Guidera and Dave Burgess for giving up part of their weekend on our behalf. It was greatly appreciated. Spectator Bob Akin helped on the safety boat and took great photographs!

Next Stop - Assateague National Seashore.
After lunch, and a brief awards ceremony, Larry and I headed for Ocean City, MD where we had rented a motel prior to three days of Assateague Island camping. This time of year is off-season at Ocean City, so motel rental is quite reasonable, with discount rates near 50%. A hot shower was very welcome and the balcony offered a perfect view of the full lunar eclipse. On Monday morning, after enjoying the complimentary hotel breakfast, we headed for the Park. At Mike Wick’s recommendation we had reserved a bay-side site as close to the water as possible. As a word of warning, even this late in the season the campground was almost full to capacity, so register early. Seniors holding a “Golden Age Pass” are admitted free and receive a 50% discount on camping.

By Monday mid-morning we had set up camp and launched the canoes. It didn’t take long for the famous Assateague ponies to check out our campsite, and they are not shy about inviting themselves to lunch, so keep all food secure. That afternoon we had a great sail, stopping at various points of interest, including a raised nature walk through the salt marsh and an old ferry landing. We also sailed to the nearest remote campground, located on Tingle Island. This is one of five sites that are accessible only by foot, or by boat. It was a near perfect afternoon, except for the mosquitoes. Bug spray is a MUST!!!

Being a barrier island, Assateague offers the best of both worlds – a long stretch of beautiful ocean beach and an intricate maze of marshes by the bay. We took advantage of both.

All in all, a great way to spend three days, or longer. Next stop was scheduled to be St Michael’s but unfortunately, Hurricane Joaquin was threatening the east coast. The staff at MASCF wisely decided to cancel the weekend event, so phase three of our planned ten day trip came to an abrupt ending. Can’t wait until next year.....

ANNOUNCEMENT

Pix: Larry Zuk holding the National Canoe Sailing trophy for Cruising Class with Kay Ryan (also sailing in the picture below).

The Ultimate Canoe Sailor

Larry Zuk sailed away on December 11, 2015. A memorial service is planned in the east in the spring.

If you started sailing a canoe for the first time Larry would sail your boat to see if it was properly balanced with a slight weather helm. A newcomer would always have answers from Larry who sailed nearby to answer any question. He was a mentor to sailing champion Tom Uebel. When three sailors came from Finland to sail in our National and International races, Larry built several ACA rigs for the occasion.

Thus, the ACA sail and rig which he designed for cruising and camping and produced were made to enable canoeists and sailors to enter the sport. Larry designed and built canoes and kayaks, from wood to modern carbon fiber. He designed and built the highly successful Dragonfly canoe made of super-cored lay-up of carbon fiber for sail racing.

The Canoe Sailor newsletter was originally the DownEast canoe sailing newsletter which Larry started. His extensive writings on ACA history and Canoe sailing history are on the website http://canusail.org/Historical/Larry Zuk/ web pages/about the author.

He spent most of his life paddling, canoe sailing, and going to the ACA camps at Sugar Island and Lake Sebago. A Sugar Island ACA sailing trophy is named after him. In his spare time he taught canoeing, sailing and boat building. As someone who enjoyed cruising and camping, he led canoe camping trips to Maine.

He donated most of his canoes to the Antique Boat Museum in Clayton, NY along with the rest of his collection.

His activities at the national level included: National Sail Measurer, Recorder and Historian of the National Sail Committee for over a decade.

For the ACA Centennial in 1980 Larry published the Yearbook We will always remember him.
