Louisville Meeting

The Society will assemble for its forty-ninth annual meeting in Louisville, Kentucky from Thursday, October 27 through Sunday, October 30 at the Galt House. The meeting is hosted jointly by the University of Louisville, the University of Kentucky, Centre College, the University of Cincinnati College-Conservatory of Music, Indiana University, and the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. The Program Committee, headed by Don Franklin, has assembled a broad choice of papers: there are twenty-five sessions scheduled on topics ranging from the music of ancient Greece through the music of the twentieth century. In addition to a healthy representation of papers on chant, Medieval, Renaissance, seventeenth-century, eighteenth-century and twentieth-century topics, there will be special sessions devoted to composers (Beethoven/Brahms; Verdi/Mahler; Wagner; and Ives), as well as sessions on Iberian music, American music, Baroque opera and dance, manuscript studies, and “music and politics.” On the more practical side, sessions have been organized around rhythm before 1530, musica ficta, performance practice, and organ music and liturgy in nineteenth-century France.

The Louisville meeting will also offer a new type of presentation, the Reports on Research in Progress. Several of these have been scheduled for Saturday. Full details will be available at the meeting.

The Performance Committee, chaired by Alexander Silbiger, has organized a varied array of concerts, with lunch-time offerings beginning on Friday at noon, when the Ensemble Chantarelle will perform a program of early seventeenth-century music. This group consists of Sally Sanford (soprano) and Robert Strizich and Catherine Liddell (lute, theorbo and Baroque guitar in various combinations). The ensemble recently won a Concert Artists Guild Award for 1983. On Saturday, Laurence Dreyfus will play the three sonatas for viola da gamba and harpsichord by J. S. Bach (based on his new edition prepared for PETERS, Leipzig, with important variants from the standard versions). Mr. Dreyfus will be accompanied by Norwegian harpsichordist Ketil Haugsand.

The nineteenth century is represented by two keyboard programs: a concert of piano music of Ferdinand Ries and Ignaz Moscheles played by French pianist Bruno Biot, and a program of nineteenth- and twentieth-century French organ music, which will be presented in conjunction with the paper session on organ music and liturgy. Twentieth-century music will be heard in a concert by violinist Dinos Constantines and pianist Michael Rickman, with works by Ives, Messiaen, Cowell, Siegmeister and others, and in a program by pianist Anthony Tommasini entitled “Portraits in Music: The Portraits for Piano by Virgil Thomson,” with some as yet unpublished compositions.

Evening performances include three special programs for the AMS. On Thursday, students of the Early Music Institute from Indiana University, directed by Thomas Binkley, will present a complete seventeenth-century Mass by Johann Kaspar Kerll. The performance by the Pro Arte Singers and an eleven-piece Baroque orchestra will take place in Louisville’s pre-Civil War Cathedral of the Assumption. On Friday, noted Louisville pianist Lee Luvisi will present a solo concert at the University of Louisville School of Music, with works by Brahms and others. Mr. Luvisi has recently been chosen as resident pianist of the Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center. On Saturday, members will have a chance to hear the Louisville Bach Society, conducted by Melvin Dickinson, in a performance of the Brahms Requiem as well as Brahms’s setting of Schiller’s Nänie, Op. 82, and the double choir motets, Op. 110. This program will also be presented at the University of Louisville, but will only be given if a sufficient number of people pre-register for it.

In addition to these concerts, members can sample other performances in Louisville during the convention weekend, including Britten’s Turn of the Screw, presented by the Kentucky Opera Association, and an appearance of the Hilliard Ensemble, one of the finest British vocal groups specializing in early music. Ticket information for these concerts, as well as for a production at Actors Theatre of Louisville, located two blocks from the hotel.
President's Message

The call for papers for the Philadelphia meeting in 1984, inviting "interdisciplinary" session proposals, prompts some reflections on this subject as the Society approaches its fiftieth anniversary. The word is likely to evoke a range of responses within our profession. For some, it may be a welcome summons for American musicology to broaden its purview. For others, it may seem yet another threat to scholarly rigor. Some may be daunted by the prospect of the taxing apprenticeship that a true interdisciplinary command might require from a scholar. Some might welcome a closer interchange with scholars in other fields, while others might despair of ever really communicating with non-musicians about essential musicological matters. Still others, having been led by the models of their work beyond any boundaries that might divide musicology from other fields, might wonder why their natural scholarly inclinations need a special label.

The wide variation in response to the notion of interdisciplinary work testifies that the term is ideologically loaded. It also can be taken to mean many different things. Simply within the realm of musicology, the term might cover: the study of issues relating music to other arts (literature, architecture, painting); humanities (philosophy, art history, literary or social history); or social sciences (anthropology, sociology, psychology), or sciences (physics, acoustics); the application of methodologies from any of these fields to musicology; the borrowing of approaches from what are today considered to be different subfields of musical study (music theory, ethnomusicology); or the investigation, by reading and conversation, of what scholars in other fields are interested in and how they are doing their work. It is only natural for us to be wary of a term that can be stretched so far. Yet, when the word is stripped of at least some of its ideological baggage, and when some of its complementary meanings are examined, it can clearly be seen to refer to techniques that many musicologists have long used. Few of us can claim to have practiced—or to have wanted to practice—a pure musicology that is a debtor to no other field. By definition, musicology is fundamentally an interdisciplinary discipline.

Musicology is also a discipline that has remained firmly rooted in its traditional approaches and concerns. In a 1982 review of musicological scholarship over the past decade, a distinguished colleague reports: "What impressed me were not novel methodologies but the intensified and more critical exploitation of some traditional ways of doing scholarship." The virtues of this kind of rootedness are obvious. Yet, "traditional ways of doing scholarship" may not be fully adequate to deal with the issues engaging the energies of all musicologists today—including new questions coming to the fore in musical phenomenology, sociology, and dissemination. As musicologists consider such new questions, and as they ponder new approaches to older ones, we may find that scholars in other fields have paved the way, providing clues that will help us to solve musicological problems.

A committee formed by the AMS Council has proposed, with the endorsement of the Board of Directors, that the Society's members consider seriously how interdisciplinary study might be brought to bear constructively upon musicology. The committee, chaired by Alejandro Planchart, with Jane Bowers, Patricia Carpenter, Margot Fassler, and Gary Tomlinson as members, recommends that such discussions might be carried on effectively at meetings of local chapters. Let this be an invitation, then, for chapter meetings to include sessions devoted to the subject—perhaps with colleagues in other fields. The Society's annual meeting also seems a logical forum for interdisciplinary approaches in musicology to be discussed and demonstrated. And that is the background for the invitation appearing below in the call for papers.

may be found with this Newsletter. A list of concerts occurring at the other host schools is also included.

On Friday night an informal concert of traditional music of Kentucky and the Southern mountains will be presented by the Buzzard Rock String Band, Kentucky's reigning champion old-time music ensemble. Information will be made available at the convention about area churches where gospel music may be heard on Sunday morning.

All paper sessions and most daytime concerts will be held at the Galt House, a spacious hotel located on the Ohio River in downtown Louisville. The Galt House has reserved ample space for AMS members and offers free off-street parking for those who will be driving. Some accommodations are being arranged with local townspeople at low or no cost for students attending the convention; those who wish further information should contact the Coordinator of Student Housing, AMS/83 (School of Music, University of Louisville, Louisville, KY 40292). The accommodations are extremely limited and are best suited to those who will have cars at the meetings.

Two tours have been arranged. A city tour will be offered on Friday morning and include some of Louisville's fine (and well-preserved) examples of late nineteenth-century mercantile architecture; Farmington (a refurbished early nineteenth-century home after a design by Thomas Jefferson); Churchill Downs (where racing will not, alas, be in season); and many of Louisville's fine old residential neighborhoods, including the Old Louisville and Cherokee areas. On Saturday morning, a trip to Bardstown, Kentucky, will be organized. Bardstown is the location of several beautiful and historic buildings, including St. Joseph Proto-Cathedral, the oldest cathedral west of the Alleghenies. Also in or near Bardstown are Federal Hill, the Georgian mansion which was the inspiration for Stephen Foster's "My Old Kentucky Home"; the Talbott Tavern, which has been in continuous operation since its beginnings as a stage-coach stop in 1779; and Gethsemani Abbey, the home and burial place of Thomas Merton. (We must regretfully announce that only men are allowed inside the abbey enclosure; women on the tour can see the abbey church—or a bit more of Bardstown.) Please note that neither of these tours will be conducted unless a sufficient number of people pre-register for them.

Louisville enjoys good airline service, especially from East Coast cities; by car or bus Louisville is also quite accessible, as there are three interstates, I-64, I-65 and I-71, converging on the city. Members may wish to use a special travel service available this year, Travel Headquarters, Ltd., a well-established Chicago firm, is providing low round-trip air fares on any flight from any city. Our use of this service may also qualify the Society for a certain number of free tickets in the future; members are accordingly urged to investigate the prices offered by the firm. A toll-free number for THQ may be found on a flyer accompanying this Newsletter.

John Hill
New Editor of JAMS

As announced in the last issue of the Newsletter, John Hill has been appointed the new editor of JAMS, beginning with the first issue of 1984. Lowell Lindgren will succeed Edward Roesner as the new Review Editor.

John Walter Hill received his undergraduate education at the University of Chicago and his Ph. D. from Harvard University in 1972. His writings on music and musical life in the sixteenth, seventeenth, and eighteenth centuries have been largely based on research done in Italy during several extended stays and regular summer visits. Having taught at the University of Pennsylvania for seven years, he has been an Associate Professor of Music at the University of Illinois since 1978. Formerly a trumpet player, he now pursues violin playing as one of many activities he shares with his two sons, Matthew, 11, and Brian, 8.

CMS Vacancy List

The College Music Society has informed the AMS that its vacancy list, which formerly could be consulted by AMS members for a fee of $8, will be available as of September 1, 1983, only to members of CMS. Membership in the College Music Society costs $25 for Regular Members and $15 for Student Members. The Society's address is: Regent Box 44, University of Colorado, Boulder, CO 80309.

The AMS Newsletter is published twice each year by the American Musicological Society, Inc., and mailed to all members and subscribers. Changes of address and requests for additional copies of current and back numbers should be mailed to Alvin H. Johnson, Executive Director, University of Pennsylvania, 201 South 34th Street, Philadelphia, PA 19104. Items for publication in the Newsletter should be sent to: R. Larry Todd, Editor, AMS Newsletter, 6695 College Station, Department of Music, Durham, NC 27708. Copy for the February issue must be submitted before December 1; copy for the August issue must be submitted before June 15.

This AMS Newsletter was produced by A-R Editions, Inc., 315 West Gorham Street, Madison, WI 53703.
Report of the Committee on the Status of Women

The committee received thirty-eight responses to the questionnaire that appeared in the last Newsletter. Although this number does not constitute a statistically valid sample and may not reflect the views of the AMS as a whole, it nevertheless identifies issues interesting to the membership.

The most useful results of the survey have to do with suggestions for potential CSW action. Although no one issue emerged as an overwhelming concern, a few suggestions occurred frequently. Some people advocated the further compilation of data on women, ranging from statistics on women musicologists' salaries, ranks, degrees, to lists of the names of institutions that have consistently sought to hire qualified women and minorities. Several respondents focused on the history of women in music. Some favored the application for an NEH Summer Seminar grant, the establishment of an award for distinguished scholarship on topics concerned with women's studies, and the distribution of bibliographical information for planning courses in the history of women in music.

"Networking," in the form of more effective communication among women musicologists, and between women musicologists and women in other disciplines, occupied the attention of several respondents. Many people expressed concern over the issue of age and its special career implications for women. Childbearing and working to support a family during a spouse's professional education can delay a woman's professional education and consequently the production of scholarly works, with the result that she is "behind" in her career and therefore may be passed over by potential employers. One respondent noted that more women should be selected as committee chairs, where appropriate. The CSW has already taken some action by recommending to the Program Committee of the 1983 Annual Meeting that women be chosen as chairs for paper sessions in approximately the same proportion as the number of papers by women accepted for presentation. And finally, the respondents were evenly divided on the question of whether the AMS should draw up a list of women's names by specialization for the benefit of future employers.

As the CSW has not had the opportunity to meet and explore the ramifications of the many provocative issues and suggestions raised in the survey, this report serves mainly as a preliminary communication to the membership. The committee expresses its thanks to those who took the time to respond, and welcomes communications and advice on its future course of action.

Editor's Column

We have received word of the death of Dragan Plamenac, distinguished Honorary member of the Society, in March at the age of 88. An obituary will appear in the February, 1984, issue of the Newsletter.

At its annual meeting in Philadelphia on March 5, the Sonneck Society announced the designation of Otto Albrecht, professor emeritus of the University of Pennsylvania, as an Honorary Member in recognition of the many contributions he has made to the study of American music. He joins the select list of those who have been similarly honored in the past: Nicolas Slonimsky (1979), Lester Levy (1980), the late Howard Hanson (1981), and Virgil Thomson (1982).

A meeting held at the Bibliothèque Nationale in Paris on August 28, 1982, marked the culmination of several years of planning among a group of musicologists from several countries hoping to launch a new edition of the complete musical works of Rameau. At this meeting agreement was reached by those involved officially to begin this vast venture. The edition will be headed by two senior editors, Neal Zaslav (general editor) and François Lesure (managing editor); and Ronald Broude of Broude Brothers Limited (publisher). The Editorial Board will include in addition to the two senior editors these scholars: Mary Cyr, Jean Duron, Robert Fajon, Edmond Lemaître, Catherine Massip, Graham Sadler, Lionel Sawkins, and R. Peter Wolf. The first volume, it is hoped, will appear at the end of 1983, Rameau’s 300th birthday. Editorial guidelines are available from Broude Brothers (170 Varick St., New York, NY 10014), and comment on them from interested parties will be welcomed. Such comments may be sent to Neal Zaslav (Dept. of Music, Cornell University, Ithaca, NY 14853), or to any other member of the Editorial Board. Work is also proceeding on a catalogue raisonné of the sources of Rameau’s music. Anyone knowing of copies of prints of Rameau’s music in private collections or small libraries whose contents have not been reported to national bibliographies, or of manuscripts of his music other than those in the three main Parisian collections (Bibliothèque Nationale, 2 rue de Louvois, 75002-Paris, or liothèque du Conservatoire) is urged to communicate that information to the general editor, Catherine Massip (Département de la musique, Bibliothèque Nationale, 2 rue de Louvois, 75002-Paris), or R. Peter Wolf (Music Dept., Douglass Campus, Rutgers University, New Brunswick, NJ 08793).

Plans have been announced recently for the formation of The American Brahms Society, a non-profit organization which will seek to foster and disseminate research on the life, music, and historical position of Brahms. To this end, the Society will issue

Report of the Chapter Fund Committee

Operating on a modest budget, the Chapter Fund Committee was able to fulfill all but one of the requests made between the Society's annual meeting in Ann Arbor (November, 1982) and the end of the fiscal year (June 30, 1983). Nine chapters (one twice) were given money for three kinds of expenditures: half the transportation expense of seven student representatives of their respective chapters to attend the Society's meeting in Ann Arbor, partial expense of a meeting of two chapters, and partial expense of printing abstracts of papers read in the meeting of a chapter. Almost exactly two-thirds of the money given to the chapters was for student travel.

Since its inception in 1970, the Committee has followed a "matching-funds" policy, but the guidelines established at that time limit the total expenditure to two hundred dollars in any one year to any one chapter. With rising costs, this limit is more closely approached each year. In the view of the Committee, the partial reimbursement of travel expenses of a student representative to a national meeting is one of its major functions. Policy on this kind of expense has been consistent in the past, but depending upon demand and upon the hard fact of rising transportation costs, the policy of reimbursing half of the travel expense may perforce be modified in the future.

The guidelines prepared for the Committee in 1969 state specifically that the Chapter Fund is "not for clerical aspects of chapter management (stenographer's wages, cost of chapter announcements, mailing, etc.)." A request for funds must be submitted by a chapter officer and must include either receipts or bills as documentation of money spent, or a detailed outline of anticipated expenses. For travel aid to a student representative, also to be initiated by a chapter officer, a ticket stub or an invoice from the issuing transportation agent should be included. The check of remittance from the Treasurer's office will be made out in the name of the chapter.

Requests for chapter funds may be addressed to: Committee Chairman, Paul J. Revitt, Conservatory of Music, University of Missouri, Kansas City, MO 64111.

—Paul J. Revitt
The Editor has received an inquiry about the music of the American-Czech composer Tomas Svoboda. Members interested in the music of Svoboda may correspond with: Thomas C. Stangland, P. O. Box 12063, Portland, OR 97219.

The Department of Music of San Diego State University announces a new scholarship for graduate students in musicology. The Jan Loewenbach Graduate Scholarship for the Study of Czechoslovak Music will assist students working toward a Master of Arts degree. Students applying should preferably have some linguistic background in Czech or Slovak. Consideration will also be given to students with a strong background in the history and music of Czech and Slovak composers in lieu of the language requirement. For further information, contact: Jaroslav Mrázek, Dept. of Music, San Diego State University, San Diego CA 92182-0217 (619-265-6031). Jan Loewenbach (1880-1972), a distinguished attorney, music critic and publicist of Czechoslovak music, was a close friend of Leoš Janáček, Jaroslav Křička, Bohuslav Martinů, and other Czechoslovak composers.

The annual list of Chapter Officers, which has in the past appeared in the August issue of the Newsletter and the annual AMS Directory, will appear henceforth only in the Directory.

The Southeastern American Society for Eighteenth-Century Studies invites submissions for its annual essay competition. An award of $50 will be given for the best essay on an eighteenth-century subject published in a scholarly journal, annual, or collection between September 1, 1982, and August 31, 1981, by a member of SEASECS or a person living or working in the SEASECS area (Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Tennessee). The interdisciplinary appeal of the essay will be considered, but will not be the sole determinant of the award. Individuals may submit their own work or the work of others. To be considered, essays must be submitted in triplicate, postmarked no later than November 1. to: Robert M. Weir, Dept. of History, University of South Carolina, Columbia, SC 29206.

The Clara Steuermann Fund is offering a research award of $200 to any scholar whose investigation will benefit from the use of the archival resources of the Arnold Schoenberg Institute. The recipient of the fellowship will be expected to have a minimum residency at the Institute. The topics for consideration may be in the fields of musicology, music theory, musical performance, or librarianship. All applicants should prepare a concise proposal of their topic including a list of source material which they intend to consult at the Institute.

Several members of the Society have recently received fellowships from the American Council of Learned Societies. They include: Laurence Dreyfus ("Bach and the Enlightenment: Musical Style and Concept"), Ralph P. Locke ("Visions of the East in Western Music from Rameau to Debussy"), James H. Moore ("The Victorian Sacred Works of Monteverdi"), Jesse Ann Owens ("Music at the Este Court in Ferrara, 1505-1559"), and Neal Zaslaw ("An Edition of the Musical Works of Jean-Philippe Rameau").

The Council for International Exchange of Scholars has announced the 1984-1985 competition for Senior Scholar Fulbright awards for university teaching and postdoctoral research. Awards are offered in all academic fields for periods of two to ten months. Interested applicants may obtain appropriate forms and information on college and university campuses in the Office of the Graduate Dean. Applicants may also write to: Council for International Exchange of Scholars, 11 Du Pont Circle, Suite 300, Washington, DC 20036.

The next deadline of September 15, 1983, applies to awards for research in Africa, Asia, Europe, and the Middle East.

The Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars, located in Washington, D.C., seeks from individuals throughout the world outstanding project proposals representing diverse scholarly interests. The Center welcomes all disciplines and is hospitable to research which falls outside one of its existing geographical or thematic categories. Scholarship undertaken at the Center transcends narrow specialties, and includes a strong humanistic component. The Center also encourages projects with theoretical, philosophical, or theological dimensions. The Center's residential fellowships are awarded in one general program—History, Culture, and Society—and five more focussed programs: American Society and Politics, the Kennan Institute for Advanced Russian Studies, the Latin American Program, the International Security Studies Program, and the East Asia Program. For academic participants, eligibility is limited to the postdoctoral level; for participants from other backgrounds, equivalent maturity and professional achievement are expected. Fellows devote their full time to research and writing. The length of a fellowship can vary from four months to a year. Within certain limits, the Center seeks to enable each fellow to meet his or her earned income during the preceding year. Deadline for applications is October 1, with decisions by mid-February. Appointment cannot begin before the following September. For information and application materials contact: The Wilson Center, Smithsonian Institution Building, Room 331, Washington, D.C. 20560 (202-357-2841).

The Columbia Society of Fellows in the Humanities, with grants from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation and the William R. Kenan Trust, will appoint a number of post-doctoral fellows in the humanities for the academic year 1984-1985. Fellows newly appointed for 1984-1985 must have received the Ph.D. between January 1, 1982, and July 1, 1984. The stipend is $20,250, with one half for independent research and one half for teaching in the undergraduate program in general education. Additional funds are available in support of such needs as research materials and typing. Application forms can be obtained by writing to: Director, Society of Fellows in the Humanities,Heyman Center for the Humanities, Box 100 Central Mail Room, Columbia University, New York, NY 10027. Deadline for receipt of completed applications is November 1, 1983. The Society will also appoint two Senior Fellows in the humanities for the academic year 1984-1985. Awards will be made to scholars of particular accomplishment and promise who have held the doctorate and have been teaching as full-time faculty for at least five years but have not yet received tenure. Senior Fellows will receive a stipend of $25,000 plus regular faculty benefits and will teach half-time in courses determined in consultation with the appropriate departments at Columbia. Candidates must be nominated by the chairmen of their departments or of an appropriate inter-departmental committee. Nominations must be accompanied by a complete curriculum vitae, including a list of publications, papers read, as well as work in progress, and a statement from the candidate concerning the proposed scholarly project. Nominations and supporting materials must be received no later than November 1, 1983. Further information may be obtained from the Director at the address above.

The American Society for Eighteenth-Century Studies has announced the establishment of three fellowship programs funded jointly by the Society, The Folger Shakespeare Library and the Folger Institute of Renaissance and Eighteenth-Century Studies, the Newberry Library and the William Andrews Clark Memorial Library. Generally fellowships are for one month. To be eligible for a fellowship an applicant must be a member in good standing of the ASES, must be a post-doctoral scholar no more than ten years from receipt of the doctorate, and must be working on a project concerning the period 1660-1815. Inquiries should be sent to the appropriate Library. For the Folger Library, write: John F. Andrews, Chairman, Folger Institute of Renaissance and Eighteenth Century Studies, 201 East Capitol St., SE, Washington, DC 20008 (202-544-4000). For the Newberry Library, write: Committee on Awards, The Newberry Library, 60 West Walton St., Chicago, IL 60610 (312-943-0900). For the Clark Memorial Library, write to: 2520 Cimarron St., Los Angeles, CA 90018 (213-731-8529).

Harvard University has announced the availability of Andrew W. Mellon Faculty Fellowships in the Humanities, with a term of appointment from July 1, 1984, through June, 1985. Applicants must be non-tenured, experienced junior scholars who have completed, at the time of appointment, at least two years postdoctoral teaching as college or university faculty in the humanities—usually as assistant professors. Applicants must have received the Ph.D. prior to June 30, 1982. The fellowship entails limited teaching duties and departmental affiliation, and offers the opportunity to the fellow to develop scholarly research. For particulars and application procedures, write to: Richard M. Hunt, Program Director, Harvard University Mellon Faculty Fellowships, Lamont Library 202, Cambridge, MA 02138.
In recognition of the bicentennial of the United States Constitution, the National Endowment for the Humanities has published a brochure describing research fellowship competitions, challenge grants, and general programs concerned with the bicentennial celebration. The booklet, entitled The Bicentennial of the Constitution, may be obtained by writing to: National Endowment for the Humanities, Old Post Office, 1100 Pennsylvania Ave., NW, Washington, DC 20506.

The Rockefeller Foundation announces a program of fellowship awards for writers and scholars in the humanities whose research aids the understanding of contemporary social and cultural issues. Twenty individual awards will be made for 1984–1985. In addition, eight resident fellowships in the humanities will be made available for 1984–1985 through a set of host institutions. The fellowships will normally extend for one year. The ordinary grant will be in the range of $15,000 to $20,000, and will not exceed $25,000. First stage proposals must be received by October 14, 1983. Address inquiries to: Rockefeller Foundation Humanities Fellowships, The Rockefeller Foundation, 1133 Avenue of the Americas, New York, NY 10036.

Call for Papers

The Sonneck Society is planning its meeting in Boston which will take place in the spring of 1984. The sessions will emphasize music in and around Boston during the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. The Program Committee particularly invites papers related to these topics, but the program will certainly not be restricted to them. The committee will look with special favor upon papers which could not make their impact in a journal, but rather need to be heard and/or seen. Send abstracts or complete papers by September 1, 1984, to: Steven Ledbetter, Program Chairman, 65 Stearns St., Newton Center, MA 02159.

A Rameau Festival, celebrating his 300th anniversary, will be held at The University of Arkansas from September 18 to 27, 1983. It will include concerts, performances of _Pygmalion_ and _Io_, and other events. A session of papers on Rameau and his era will be part of the Festival. Paper proposals are invited; send abstracts to: Barbara Garvey Jackson, Dept. of Music, J. William Fulbright College of Arts and Sciences, The University of Arkansas, Fine Arts Annex 201, Fayetteville, AR 72701 (501-575-4702).

A call for papers has been issued for the Fourteenth Annual Meeting of the East-Central/American Society for Eighteenth-Century Studies, which will be held from September 29 to October 1, 1983, in New Castle, Delaware. Submit proposals for papers or sessions to: Donald Mell, Dept. of English, University of Delaware, Newark, DE 19711.

The Midwest American Society for Eighteenth-Century Studies will hold its fourteenth annual meeting at Indiana University (Bloomington) from October 27 to 29, 1983. Individual papers or panels and seminars are welcome on any subject. Interested participants are urged to consider the following list of proposed areas: history of science, medicine and technology; science, philosophy and literature; England and the Continent: literary and cultural relations; popular culture; town and country: literature and the arts; courts and court life; new approaches to eighteenth-century narrative; arts, architecture and the Enlightenment; the Enlightenment: modern and colonies; the Enlightenment and religion; education or pedagogy; music; and the Scottish national identity in the eighteenth century. Submissions and proposals should be received as soon as possible to Michael L. Berkvam, Dept. of French and Italian, Ballantine Hall 642, Indiana University, Bloomington, IN 47405.

A call for papers has been issued by the University of Arkansas Dept. of Music for a William Grant Still Festival, to be held at The University of Arkansas in Fayetteville from February 15 to 19, 1984. Topics dealing with the life and music of William Grant Still and Black American music in general are welcomed. A selection of papers and other festival events—seminars, panels, and pre-concert presentations—will be published after the festival in _William Grant Still: A 1984 Congress Report_. Proposals and abstracts for papers should be sent to: Claire Detels, Dept. of Music, University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, AR 72701.

The Tenth Annual Meeting of the Southeastern American Society for Eighteenth-Century Studies will be held from March 8 to 10, 1984, in Charleston, SC. Proposals for papers on any eighteenth-century topic are solicited. Contributors might consider the following topics: Charleston and the Colonial South; Huguenot history and literature; children's literature, utopian thought, and the bicentenaries of Diderot and Dr. Johnson. Completed papers may be submitted up to October 1, 1983. The decisions of the Program Committee will be made by December 1, 1983. Papers should be addressed to: J. Patrick Lac, President, SEAECSS, Box VPAA, Barry University, Miami, FL 33161.

The Southeastern Nineteenth-Century Studies Association has announced a call for papers for its next meeting to be held from April 5 to 7, 1984, at the Virginia Military Institute in Lexington, Virginia. The topic of the meeting is "Propriety in the Nineteenth Century"; a wide variety of papers addressing this topic is invited. Send abstracts by October 1 to: Wendy Greenberg, Dept. of Foreign Languages, Pennsylvania State University, Fogelsville, PA 18051.

The Central Institute for Mozart Research of the International Mozarteum Foundation will hold an academic conference from August 31 to September 3, 1984, entitled "Mozart 1784." Round-table discussions and open lectures will be given on the following subjects: 1) Mozart in 1784 (open lecture by Christoph Wolff); 2) The Piano Concertos (round-table discussion, chaired by Marius Flothuis); 3) Mozart's Salzburg World during the Viennese Years (round-table discussion, chaired by Otto Biba); 4) Mozart's Handwritten Catalogue (open lecture by Wolfgang Plath); 5) The Mystification Surrounding Mozart's Dramatic Works during the 19th Century (open lecture by Hans-Joachim Kreutzer); and 6) Present-Day Productions of Mozart's Dramatic Works (round-table discussion, chaired by Wolfgang Rehm). There are opportunities for individuals to present papers on subjects of their choice. The closing date for applications, which should include an abstract of the proposed topic, is January 1, 1984. Inquiries and applications should be addressed to: Conference 1984, c/o Internationale Stiftung Mozarteum, Box 34, A-5024 Salzburg, Austria.

The Fourth Conference of the International Decade of Research in Singing will be held from July 23 to 27, 1984, in Honolulu. The purpose of the conference is two-fold: 1) to promote cross-cultural understanding and appreciation of vocal music and 2) to foster interaction among ethnomusicologists, voice scientists, and other scholars. Because of the conference location, there will be events and studies relating to Asian and Pacific traditions. Session themes will include: inter-disciplinary approaches to voice research; instrumentation and methodologies for voice research; vocal pedagogy: cross-cultural approaches; aspects of vocal style: folk, commercial, art; vocal traditions of Asia and the Pacific region; and social context of singing. Those interested in participating should write to: William Feltz, Culture Learning Institute, East-West Center, Honolulu, HI 96848. Proposals must be submitted on an official form by February 29, 1984.

From April 23 to 28, 1984, Butler University will host a lecture series on the subject of the Russian Five as part of Romantic Music Festival XVII. Papers are now solicited on any aspect of the Five or related arts. Send abstracts by January 1, 1984, to: James R. Briscoe, Jordan College of Fine Arts, Butler University, Indianapolis, IN 46208.

ANNUAL REPORT, FINANCE COMMITTEE

The increase in net worth of the Society during the fiscal year 1982-83, $51,778.76, comes from three sources: 1) the excess of receipts over expenditures in the current operations side of our affairs, $8,269.78, and from the publication account, $5,925.23, a total of $14,195.01, 2 paid-out capital gains from Massachusetts Investors Trust stock, $6,814.50, and 3) the appreciation of the market value of our equity investments, $30,789.25.

The cash reserves and the income they produce play a significant role in the structure of the Society’s finances. The income from the cash reserves of the operations account, $1,958.17, represents all but $653.41 of our surplus, without which we would be perilously close to a deficit and the need once again to raise dues. For the publication side of our affairs the income from cash reserves, $7,743.16, exceeds our surplus by $1,817.93. Our reserves are, therefore, a necessary and integral part of our financial structure; without them our financial stability would be almost entirely dependent upon our dues schedule alone.

Respectfully submitted,

Richard Crawford
James Webster
Alvin H. Johnson, Chairman
Forthcoming Meetings and Conferences

This column seeks to list meetings that may be of interest to AMS members. The notices are ordered chronologically. The deadlines for submission of items for inclusion are June 15 for the August issue and December 1 for the February issue.
