KEYNOTE ADDRESS

Communicating Genetic Information to Patients with Cancer

Dr. Kimberly Kaphingst is a health communications researcher and expert in health literacy, cancer communication, and the communication of genetic and genomic information. She leads an interdisciplinary team of researchers at Salt Lake City’s Huntsman Cancer Institute that recently earned a $5 million National Cancer Institute Cancer Moonshot Grant to study communication of genetic information to patients and providers.

OTHER SESSIONS

Crista Cowan of Ancestry.com will talk about privacy issues related to genetic testing.

Dr. Amy Hawkins of the University of Utah’s Genetic Science Learning Center will discuss trends in genetic education.

A bonus Business Strategies for Freelance Writers panel discussion will feature attorney Caleb Friscknecht on copyright law; tax expert Karen Summerhays on 2019 tax strategies; and business owner Dr. Angela Andersen on building alliances.
